LATE MARKETS.

Growers Consolidated.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—The Minneapolis Star will publish the following this afternoon:

Consolidation of the United States Grain Growers' Sales company of Minneapolis and state wheat growers' associations into the American wheat growers' association was announced today by the Minnesota farm bureau federation. The United States Grain Growers' Sales company and the group of state wheat growers' associations which operate under the American wheat growers' association are co-operative marketing organizations and the consolidation centralizes the full strength of the farmer marketing movement into one organization. The merger of these two organizations was hailed by leading grain men in co-operative marketing as the biggest step toward control of farm products taken since the movement started. It was primarily started to offer farmers a marketing machine for their coarse grains without the establishment of an additional organization. The merger will be of extra value to members of the organization in South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota and Montana.—Lamson.

Daily Grain Review.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The bulk of today's business in wheat appeared to be spreading Chicago and Winnipeg, the latter market ruling firmer. Our market lost ground with little incentive for activity in either direction. Apparently the evening-up of yesterday had weakened the market to such an extent that prices will have to react to a point where recent sellers will be attracted or new buyers will take hold. Today's action was accounted for by the fact that cash wheat was a little easier due to a letting-up in export and domestic demand.

Corn was lower because the weather outlook was improved and the cash prices of yesterday were not quite maintained. Eastern distributors were reported as offering to resell in order to secure the accumulated profits from the well sustained advance. Receipts were heavier than for several days and if they continue so for long a sharp reduction in premiums and further decline in futures would not be surprising.

Oats declined with other grains, but met a good demand on the dips.—Lamson.

IN "PERSONALITY SEPARATION"

Mrs. Richard Bennett, known to the Stage as Adrienne Morrison.

Yes, that's just it," remarked Mrs. Richard Bennett, known to the stage as Adrienne Morrison. "It's simply a 'personality separation, a six blocks divorce.'"

Mrs Bennett was sitting on the edge of the bed, explaining her version of why she and her actor husband decided to seek more joy by living apart. She finished moving into the top floor rear of the vividly painted studio building, and her share of the Bennett household effects were stacked about in disorder.

The arrangement, said Mrs Bennett, was that Constance, eighteen years old and in the movies, should live with her. Constance has returned home since the annulment of her marriage with Chester Hirst Moorehead of Chicago. The young couple separated in January of this year, ending a "puppy love" romance and elopement in this city. The second daughter, Barbara, who is seventeen, and is studying dancing, will live with Mr Bennett. And Joan, sixteen years, when she returns from the St Margaret's school, Waterbury, will live fifty-fifth with each of the house holds. Eventually, admitted Mrs Bennett, the two older girls will have their own flat. Only the future holds the answer to whether the Bennetts will further complicate the housing shortage.

Stone Quarries Near Wymore Ship Ten Carloads Daily Over Burlington Since Monday.

WYMORE, Neb., Oct. 4.—The present high water, with the consequent cutting and washing of railway grades, is greatly stimulating business for the Davis Stone Quarries, east of Wymore. The firm has been loading ten carloads of heavy rock daily for the Burlington since Monday, and orders are increasing. The Burlington is having trouble holding the Atchison branch line south from Rulo, and most of the rock loaded here is being hauled there and placed on the dump next to the Missouri river. All cinders that can be secured are also being shipped to Reynolds and Hoag to repair tracks.

SLEW MAN FOR SAKE OF WIFE

STOCKTON, Cal., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Bessie Ratto, held here today, admitted she accompanied Alex Kels, confessed slayer of an aged man, to the ranch where the stranger was slain at 10 a. m. on the day of the murder. The murder took place a few hours later.

"I don't know why I went to the ranch with Kels," Mrs. Ratto said.

Mrs. Ratto is in her thirties and of matronly appearance.

She admitted, Sheriff Reicks said, that she was with Kels in the cabin a short distance from the haystack where the stranger's body was found.

This development came soon after officers had definitely identified the man as James McGovern of Indiana, apparently a stranger in California. He had been seeking employment in San Joaquin county, stopping at a hotel.

Kels was brought here during the night from Eureka, where he was arrested a month after the murder. He was attempting to kill himself as officers took him into custody.

The accused man clung to his story that he "planted" the body of the man he knew only as "Mac" so that his wife could collect $100,000 insurance and straighten out his business tangles. He said he had planned for three weeks to take that way out.

"I did it for my wife," he muttered. "But please don't ever tell her. I've taken a life and I will give one, but my only hope is that she never knows.

"Let her continue in the belief that it was I who was killed and that she has already wept over my grave."

Mrs. Kels who is about to become a mother, has not been informed that the body of the murdered man was not that of her husband.

Relatives said they believed the accused man insane.

Kels told a plain straightforward story of the killing, while en route to Stockton. He talked calmly, telling how he picked up the man and then shaped and executed the plot to kill him as a way out of his financial embarrassment.

"WORKS FINE!" IS RICHARD BENNETT'S REPORT ON TWO-FLAT IDEA TO KEEP PEACE

Richard Bennett, Actor, and Daughter, Constance.

See how happy the Bennetts are, Richard, the actor, and daughter Constance? And this in spite of rumors of a "break-up" in the Bennett family which followed the dissolution of two Bennett "homes"—one for Richard Bennett and daughter Barbara at 168 West Fifty-eight street, and one for Mrs. Bennett and daughter Constance at 126 East Fifty fourth street.

"No trouble between Mrs Bennett and me—it's the girls," the actor explained. "They are different. They don't get along. We want each to develop in her own way, so we separated. However, we all have dinner together every night. It works fine."

CHARLEY IS A POSSIBILITY

FORMER NON-PARTISAN LEAGUER SAYS HE IS RISING.

Has Support for President in Five States—May Be the Best Compromise Candidate.

Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska, is a strong democratic presidential possibility for 1924, according to W. E. Quigley of Minneapolis, a former resident of Lincoln. Mr. Quigley was connected with the Nonpartisan league in Nebraska in 1917, 1918 and 1919 and has been active in the Farmer Labor party of Minnesota, which has succeeded in electing two United States senators within the past year.

"Mr. Bryan has strong support among the Progressives in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska, Quigley told a Journal reporter Thursday. "Some of the biggest men in the Minnesota Farmer Labor party, who have been active democrats in the past, feel that Bryan is the logical man for the democras to run. They class him as a sane progressive, one who does more than visualize, one who puts his theories into actual practice and gets results for Mr. Average Man's pocketbook. Witness the coal situation, wherein the price has been cut for the Nebraska consumer. Witness the buying of gasoline for 9 cents a gallon for the state, when the price but a few months ago was in the neighborhood of 22 cents. Those are the things that count with the average voter and Bryan has become a national figure almost over night. He will be a strong compromise candidate for either first or second place on the ticket."

Want Wet Candidate.

That the wets would attempt to control the national convention was predicted by Quigley.

"A movement is on foot to nominate Governor Al Smith of New York, who will come to the convention with the New York delegation in his pocket. Smith is an avowed wet and will get some support from Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey and other Atlantic coast states. Should the wets start a pussyfoot campaign to control local democratic caucuses, and thus gain state delegations, Smith would be a dangerous character. But the women's vote and the agrarian ballots would make him a hard man to elect, and the probabilities are that Smith could never get the necessary two-thirds for nomination."

Who Is Magnus Johnson?

Quigley's observations on Magnus Johnson, Minnesota's new Farmer Labor senator, were interesting.

"I campaigned with Johnson," he said, "and I do not like to see the big business papers of the country attempt to ridicule and minimize his abilities. It is true that Johnson talks a little brokenly, as he came from Sweeden when nineteen years old. But all of us had ancestors who could not talk English and that is a small defect. What Johnson lacks in polish, he makes up in sincerity and honesty. He has his feet on the ground, is an actual dirt farmer, is in sympathy with organized labor, and will make himself felt in the senate. Magnus Johnson will undoubtedly receive a lot of publicity during the coming congressional session, and much of it will be ridicule. But those who watch his votes and actions will see that it pays to take men from the common herd and elevate them to high offices. There are too many men in congress now with a polished exterior, who do not understand what the country needs. Johnson and Shipstead have able political advisers in the ranks of the organized farmers and workers and will be consistently progressive."

Non Partisan League Dying.

The Nonpartisan league, as an organization, is fast dying in the northwest, said the former organizer.

"The skeleton is there, and several thousand members rejoined this summer in Minnesota, due to the tremendous impetus of the Farmer Labor campaign. And the same is true in Nebraska. But when A. C. Townley withdrew from politics he took the lifeblood of the Nonpartisan league with him. The skeleton will survive a few years, but the platform and aims of the league will be put across, either by the democrats and republicans, through progressive control, or by the farmer labor party. The one man domination of progressiveism in the northwest is passing away and in its stead principles of progress are becoming grooved into the peoples minds and the best of them will be culled out and eventually made into law."

Quigley, who has been attending to legal business here, returned to Minneapolis Thursday.

WOMEN VOTERS CONVENE

Jury Service for Nebraska Women and Removal of Party Circle to Be Presenetd.

AURORA, Neb., Oct. 4.—The state convention of the league of women voters held its opening session here this morning before a small delegation. Bad roads cut the attendance.

The board of dertctors and the council in joint session decided on the legislative program to be presented to the convention.

Jury service for Nebraska women and the removal of hte party circle from the ballot are the two chief issues to be presented, it was decided.

Joint ownership between husband and wife of property accumulated after marriage and the provisions and enforcement of the new Nebraska marriage law will be recommended for study.

The child labor law will also be studied, in particular as it affects workers in beet fields. The one house legislature and the short ballot will probably be endorsed.

USE RADIO IN COAL MINES.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Radio has entered the mines and well known mining engineers now believe that by its use in mine operation and rescue work the hazards of that calling will be further reduced. The department of the interior is making extensive preparations at the government experimental coal mine at Bruceton, Pa., to continue the various experiments recently undertaken to determine the exact value of radio communication in mine operation and rescue work.

CARNIVAL PROPRIETOR SETTLES

An action in which belongings of the Indian Carnival company were to be attached by Constable Vorhies of Justice Stevens' court because nine former employes alleged that they had not been paid for their services for six weeks, was dismissed in justice court Thursday afternoon when the defendant came to a settlement and paid the lads. The plaintiffs were: Charles White, Stanley Braddy, Emery J. Schneider, Merle Harris, W. P. Ludington, Albert R. Bahon, Alfred Harris and Clifford Barnum.

No Reduction in Rates.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 4.—Attempts to secure a reduction in rates for fire insurance in Fremont have proved futile thus far, according to an announcement by Fire Chief Harry Morse. The state fire inspector in ruling on a petition for a reduction, declares Fremont must still remain in class six, of the stat erequirements.

The chief reason for the denial of a reduction was the present water system and the lack of sufficient pressure. Several hydrants must be replaced and additional paid firemen must be kept on the job at all times, the inspector ruled.

Recent improvements in the water system, including the addition of new loops and an extension, induced the fire chief to seek a requisition in rates.

U. P. INCREASES EARNINGS.

OMAHA, Oct. 4.—The Union Pacific railway system increased its net earnings for the first eight months of 1923 $2,927,134 compared to the net earnings for the first eight months of 1922, according to statistics issued at Union Pacific headquarters here today.

NEBRASKA NEWS

Wymore—Fire, apparently incendiary origin, totally destroyed a four room frame house at Sixteenth and Calhoun streets in west Wymore which belonged to the Mike Morman estate. The house was worth little for a residence, having stood vacant for the past fifteen years, but it contained about $300 worth of the old fashioned white pine lumber obtainable about forty years ago. The elder Mormans died here many years ago, and the only daughter, Effie, exiled herself from the home fifteen years ago, and died on an eastern state. There are two sons left heir to the property, and their whereabouts is unknown.

Madison—A large number of the friends of Rev. Allan Chamberlain pastor of the Methodist church at Madison for the last five years gathered at the church Monday evening to extend to him and his family their best wishes as he goes to Loup City, Neb., to enter upon the work at that place. He was presented with a chair as a token from his friends in and about Madison. Refreshments were served in the parlors of the church.

Madison — The Mothers and Woman's club entertained the teachers of the public school. An enjoyable program was rendered. It was the most elaborate entertainment ever given by the clubs.

Madison—The Red Cross nurse for the south half of Madison county, is organizing all the children into the Junior Red Cross. A class or school membership fee of 50 cents is required and the child receives a membership badge after he has performed some deed of service. The children are filling small boxes for overseas children to be distributed at Christmas time. Foreign correspondence is a most interesting feature of the work.

Sidney—C. T. Magaw, general attorney for the Union Pacific system, with headquarters at Omaha, addressed the regular weekly luncheon of the Sidney Chamber of Commerce, upon questions of public relations between the railroads and the public. A large attendance greeted Mr. Magaw and heard him with pleasure.

Sidney—The Hastings automobile caravan of business men and farmers of Hastings, Minden and Holdrege, were compelled to detour from the scheduled route and went through Sidney this noon on their way to Sterling. Owing to heavy rains, they were prevented from going from Kimball to Fort Morgan.

Sidney—The Cheyenne county fall festival and corn palace opened this week. The largest exhibit of farm products ever shown in the county will be on display and record yields of all kinds of grain are being reported.

SKIMP FOOD TO BUY GASOLINE.

CHICAGO. — (By Mail.) — Many American families are going hungry to save money enough for the Sunday's automobile gasoline supply, it is declared by Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, director of the food research institute of Stanford university, in a statement made public at a health conference here. Dr. Taylor, who was diet adviser to the Hoover food administration during the war, warns of a dangerous movement towards restriction of the American family diet in order to spend the saving on luxuries.

Just the One.

Mrs. X was questioning an applicant for the position of nurse and finding the girl had not voluntarily left her last place she inquired, "Why were you discharged?"

"Well, ma'am," said the girl frankly, "to tell the truth, I sometimes forgot to wash the children."

Whereupon there came from Mrs X's children in chorus, "Oh, mother please engage her."—Boston Transcript.

FIRE FAILS TO SHAKE CONVICTS

POISON BOOZE TOLL 2,000

Incomplete Figures for First Nine Months.

FOURTEEN LISTED IN NEBRASKA

Contributing Factor in Scores of Other Deaths.

At Least 90 Per Cent of the Bootleg Liquor Sold Is Poisonous, Nationwide Survey Indicates.

(Copyright, 1923, United Press.)

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—Poison booze took a toll of more than 2,000 lives in the United States during the first nine months of 1923.

It was a contributing factor in scores of additional deaths, including motor accidents.

At least 90 per cent of the bootleg liquor sold in the average American city is poisonous to a greater or less degree.

These facts were revealed today by a nation-wide survey conducted by the United Press.

The figures represent official estimates by coroners, bureaus of vital statistics and other responsible officials in twenty-four states where at least partial records are kept.

They represent minimum estimates and in many cases cover only a section of the states. It is probable that the actual total, if available, should show a far greater figure.

The highest death rate was shown in the big industrial centers.

Philadelphia in Lead.

The city of Philadelphia led all other cities, the coroner's office estimating the number of dead from booze either directly or indirectly at 600.

Pittsburgh was second with 373; New York city third with 204 (newspaper estimate), and Chicago fourth with 150.

The Massachuetts state board of health reported 154 deaths from alcoholism from January 1 to June 30.

In Wisconsin the state board of health estimated tyelve dead, while H. J. Grundman, deputy coroner for Milwaukee, had records showing eight persons were killed directly and 113 indirectly in the city of Milwaukee alone.

In Buffalo, the city health department recorded 33 deaths from alcoholism since January 1.

Albany reported three dead in the city with no state wide figures available.

In Minnesota, B. Quavle, state prohibition enforcement officer said there baad been twenty poison liquor deaths in thes tate since January 1.

H. B. Owen, secretary of the state prohibition commissioner of West Virginia, said in Charleston that no official figures on poison liquor deaths were kept but that records of the office indicated that at least fifty persons had died since January 1.

In Denver the registrar of vital statistics said twelve persons died in the city and county from drinking poisoned liquor from January 1 to September 1. Four died at Sterling and one at Lamar, Col.

Total Is Greater.

The coroner's office in Atlanta, Ga., had records of only two deaths from

RETIRES AS ROBBER

John Dunn

"Second Story Johnnie" Dun, seventy-three year old burglar and safe-blower, who has spent thirty-one years in nine penitentiaries and other prisons, was "sentenced" for the forty-third time September 29. But instead of being taken to a cell, the old man was removed to the Cook county infirmary, where he says he will "spend the remaining years in peace and quiet." He had been sentenced to the bridewell by Judge Hugo Pam after pleading guilty to robbing a south side home but Assistant State's Attorney Joseph P. Savage urged the court to send him to the infirmary because of failing health.

COWGILL ASK FOR VIADUCT

WANTS THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD TO GET BUSY.

Claims It Is Has Had the Use of City Money for Over a Year and Has Done Nothing Towards Building the Structure.

City Commissioner Cowgill wants the Missouri Pacific railroad to get busy right off and begin the construction of a viaduct over its tracts at Thirty-fifth and Holdrege streets.

"The city council appropriated $5,000 August 28, 1922, to help build this viaduct and the railroad has the money and has had it for over a year," he said. In the meantime the city has another $5,000 in its road fund to be paid over when the railroad shows signs of going ahead.

We must get action on this viaduct. I have recently written a letter to that effect to a Missouri Pacific official urging haste. The people in that section of the city are right after me and want something done. Travel that should pass over Thirty-fifth street must use Thirty-third street which is a great inconvenience. I see no reason why the viaduct has not been built. The city has a deed from the Missouri Pacific for the right of way but that is only worth a few hundred dollars That $5,000 is drawing no interest.

The commissioner stated that the railroad as an excuse alleged that it was so busy that it had not got around to viaduct building. It mentioned that it has already assembled some of the material. The improvements are estimated to cost $15,000 to $20,000, the railroad to bear a certain proportion of the cost.

The services were largely attended.

BRITISH HOLD CONFERENCE

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The imperial economic conference opened its second session at 11.30 a. m. today.

STATE REWARD NEXT.

Governor Bryan has not offered a reward for the capture of the perpetrator of the Homer D. Williams murder in Lincoln, but said he might do so after conferring with the county attorney and attorney general. Usually the governor acts in such cases only when requested by the county attorney where the crime is committed. Governor Bryan said the offering of a reward would be justified if it will aid any in bringing about the arrest of the murderer. The state reward is limited by law to $200.

GOVERNOR IS FOR RECALL

PREFERS THIS TO REMOVAL BY LEGISLATURE.

Inconceivable That People Should Depend Upon Legislature Which Is Not Always Responsive.

Governor Bryan was asked Thursday what he thought of a constitutional amendment, such as was submitted to a vote of the people in Oklahoma, which permits the house of representatives to meet at its pleasure to present impeachment charges against the governor, the senate to meet with power to try the charges and to render judgment on the charges. In Nebraska impeachment charges against state officers can be preferred by both houses of the legislature in joint session convened in regular or when called to convene by the governor, the supreme court being the body which tries the charges and renders judgment.

"When the people feel such action is necessary to protect their interests," said Governor Bryan, "I would support the people, but it is inconceivable that public interests would demand that course. I am a strong believer in majority rule as a basis for government. However, I think the recall of all state officers, including railway commissioners, would be of more protection to the people than depending upon the legislature, for I have found when the public expresses themselves upon an issue the legislators do not feel that they are included in the issues determined by the people and are inclined to take their own judgment instead of that of the people."

TWO MAY NOT LIVE.

Joseph Barker, Bethany and James Towey, Spaulding, Neb., victims of the gas explosion at Havelock shops, are still in a critical condition at St. Elizabeth's hospital Thursday, where they were taken immediately after the disaster. Others who suffered injuries are on the road to recovery according to physicians.

WOMAN'S NAME IN CASE

Mrs. Bessie Ratto May Be Involved in Strange Murder of Aged Man by Alex Kels.

STOCKTON, Cal., Oct. 4.—For the first time the name of a woman today was brought into the strange murder case surrounding Alex Kels, Lodi butcher.

The woman was Mrs. Bessie Ratto of Stockton.

She admitted to Sheriff William Reicks of San Joaquin county that she had seen Kels on the morning of the day he confessed he murdered a stranger he had employed and permitted burial of the body as that of his own.

"If I have to face it I am ready," Mrs. Ratto said.

TWO KILLED IN ACCIDENT

FARMER AND HIS NIECE MEET A SUDDEN DEATH.

Automobile Struck at Grade Crossing on Union Pacific Near Ames by Eastbound Fruit Express Train.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 4.—O. E. Thompson, forty-one, farmer residing west of Ames, his niece Dorothy Hooper, six, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hooper, of Fremont were instantly killed about 7 30 this morning when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an eastbound fruit express on the Union Pacific, one miles west of Ames.

There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy. The engineer saw the car approaching the crossing but it was too late to halt the speeding train. The front end of the auto a Ford touring car, had cleared the track. The locomotive struck the rear end of the machine, hurling car and occupants for some distance.

The little Hooper girl was spending teachers' institute vacation with the Thompsons. With her uncle, they started for Ames to do some shopping. Thompson is well known in this vicinity where he has resided for many years.

There were but few marks or cuts on the bodies of either of the victims when picked up shortly after the fatal crash. It is believed they died almost instantly of internal injuries.

Exact details of the cause of the tragedy will never be known. It is believed, however, that Thompson failed to see the train approaching the crossing. He failed to stop as the train approached. The crew of the locomotive heard one scream just before the crash, evidently when the little girl saw the locomotive already on top of the car.

WRECKED RAILING ON THE P STREET BRIDGE

The picture shows the bent railing and broken rods on the P street bridge over Salt creek west of the O street viaduct where the Hudson car driven by Harry Turner went into the bridge Wednesday night after striking the Clayton Ford coupe east of the bridge. The Hudson was traveling west. When it stopped, the front end of the car was extending over Salt creek, supported by the bent and twisted steel work of the bridge.

TO COLLECT REPAIR BILL

COUNTY OFFICERS DETERMINED TO END RECKLESS DRIVING.

Will Present Bill for Damages and in Addition May Prosecute Parties Responsible for an Accident.

Lancaster county will attempt to collect the cost of repairing the P street bridge over Salt creek from those responsible for the automobile accident at 10:45 p. m. Wednesday. In addition the county attorney began investigation Thursday morning to see if any of the laws of the road had been violated and if the violation of these laws caused the accident. He announced that he would make a thoro investigation and if he found violation of law that he would begin prosecution.

County Commissioner Hensley and Road Superintendent Shotwell viewed the wrecked superstructure of the steel bridge over Salt creek early Thursday. They found that the car, after striking the Ford car just east of the bridge, had continued onto the bridge and for a distance of ninety-two feet had avoided other obstructions. Then the nose of the car had turned into the south truss structure of the bridge, had sheared off plates, iron rods and had bent the guard railing out over the stream, weakening the whole south superstructure. The heavy auto had hung out over the stream supported by the metal railing. There was no evidence on the paving that brakes had been used. Below in the mud was an imprint showing where one of the passengers in the Hudson car had sat down, fifteen feet below the bridge floor. Another had landed in the debris. A little more strain and the big car with all of its passengers would have dropped into the mud and slimy water of Salt creek.

"Repair the bridge," said Mr. Hensley to Mr. Shotwell, "and keep an accurate account of the cost. We will try to make them pay for this."

Ninety-two feet east of where the Hudson struck the bridge were the tracks of the Ford car that had been wrecked. Glass was strewn over the paving. Much of the glass was blood-stained. A woman's handkerchief that had been used to stanch the blood flow was found in the debris. The tracks showed that the Ford car had traveled east and that it was hugging the south edge of the paving. It was pushed from the paving to the soft earth three feet from the paving edge. Then the Hudson had gone ahead, apparently favoring the wrong side of the road and had struck the south side of the bridge.

"Somebody should pay for such damage," said Mr. Hensley. "Cars destroy much county bridge property. They run into culverts, break off guide posts and wreck bridges. The cost of reckless driving should not be charged up to the taxpayers. They have enough to carry."

County Attorney Matson at once assigned Assistant County Attorney Towle to the case and ordered a thoro investigation with such action taken as the facts developed seemed to warrant.

KENYON CASE IS SUBMITTED

FORMER INSURANCE MAN PLEADS FOR ANOTHER TRIAL.

Denies Any Part in Embezlzement of Stock Certificate Used as Collateral for a $50,000 Note Given.

Houghton W. Kenyon, who at one time cut a big figure in the insurance world, coming here from Chicago to organize the Bankers' Fire and the Bankers' Automobile companies, was before the supreme court Thursday urging that his conviction on a charge of converting to his own use a stock certificate worth $16,000, be set aside. Kenyon received a sentence of from one to seven years, and has been out on bond pending the hearing of the appeal.

Frank M. Tyrrell, who was chief counsel for Kenyon insisted that his conviction was the result of passion and prejudice, and that he was the victim of the public demand that someone be sacrificed for the orgie of stock selling in the state in 1919 and 1920. He insisted that Kenyon had not been shown to have wronged anybody or ever sold a share of stock.

The charge, as stated by C. L. Dort, assistant attorney general, is that Kenyon and C. E. Maixner, the former secretary and the latter treasurer of the Bankers' Fire, were in hard financial lines in 1920 and had to raise $50,000 in a hurry. Otto H. Bruckman, a farmer from West Point, had returned his original stock certificates for 2,000 shares in the Bankers' Fire to Maixner to have it split up into three smaller units. The last he saw of it was on Kenyon's desk. Other testimony was to the effect that it was in the note case of Maixner's bank at Ceresco as collateral security for a loan to Bruckman made by that bank.

The state charges that Maixner and Kenyon took it from the bank and pledged it, with other stock they owned, to the American Trust company as security for a loan of $50,000. Maixner is serving time in prison for his connection with bank frauds, and his wife testified that she saw Kenyon slap her husband on the back the morning the loan was negotiated and told him to put it up good and hard to Burtch, in charge of trust company loans, and that if he did not get the money they would be in jail in five minutes.

Kenyon has denied all along that he knew anything about the use of the Bruckman stock as collateral for the $50,000 note, and insists that he got no benefit from such us eas he was only a surety. The state denies this, and says that the note shows he was a joint maker and had a joint liability. Maixner so testified. Kenyon's attorney told the court that Maixner testified under duress, and that at the time he had an application before the state board of pardons and paroles, of which the attorney general is a member. The latter retorted that all Maixner wanted was a rectification of the record, which gave him from one to twenty years on each of three counts, when he pleaded guilty to one only. As a matter of fact he said, Kenyon called him as a witness and the state used him only on rebuttal.

The $50,000 loan was negotiated to take up a pressing demand of the American State bank on notes due it and there was conflict in the testimony as to whether Kenyon did or did not owe part of the money.

MACHINE GUNS USED ON PRISON FORTRESS

Mutineers at Kentucky Prisoners Still Lodgde In Position.

BULLETS RIDDLE MESS HALL

Some of Convicts May Have Been Killed.

POISON GAS MAY BE EMPLOYED

Two Guards Dead and Third Expected to Succumb as Result of Struggle With Prisoners Trying to Escape.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—A hail of machine gun, rifle and pistol fire, turned loose on the stronghold where three convicts were beseiged by soldiers, guards and volunteers, failed to dislodge the mutineers from their position. The mess hall in which the convicts were holding out was riddled with hundreds of bullets.

It is believed that one or more of the trio may have been killed or wounded by the torent of lead hurled from all sides.

When firing was ordered stopped, Captain B. A. Radford, commander of here after the attempted jail break yesterday, called upon the desperados to surrender.

There was no response. This gave rise to the belief that the men may have been killed by the fussilade.

The next step, it was believed, would be an attempt to flood the mess hall with poison gas to force a surrender if the men still were alive.

Captain Radford and Warden John B. Chilton hesitated to order the besiegers to storm the building, because of possibility that the mutineers, still alive, were conserving their ammunition in anticipation of a mass attack.

Hodge Cunningham, guard, was killed yesterday in the battle with the convicts. E. B. Mattingly, another guard, wounded in the fighting during the day, died early today of his wounds. William Gilbert, another guard, is expected to die.

Early plans to use tear gas in an effort to dislodge the men were abandoned when it was found the prisoners' fortress was so located that the gas would affect the other six hundred prisoners.

Shortly after 7 a. m. yesterday three prisoners, all convicted murderers—Monte Walters of Louisville; Harry Forland of Newport and Lawrence Griffith of Graves county—quit work in the shirt factory and attempted to escape.

They seized Lee Scholes, guard, took away his gun, bound him and placed him in the basement of the factory. They were intercepted by Cunningham and several other guards. The prisoners poured a fusillade of bullets into the group and Cunningham was instantly killed. Four others were wounded.

J. N. Jones, prison clerk, said Walters' wife may have smuggled the guns to the convicts.

"The wife of Walters, who is a lifer, visited him about a week ago," he said. "She might have been instrumental in getting guns to the men, but it was impossible for her to have brought them personally.

"All the prisoners have automatic pistols, but it still remains a mystery how they got them. Of course they got one from Scholes when they tied him up.

"We think Mrs. Walters may have arranged for the men to get guns and ammunition from some other source."

A machine gun was brought from a coal mine near here last night and trained on the barricade, but was not fired. Prison authorities said it was useless to try to starve the men out as the entire food supply of the prison was in the kitchen where the men are entrenched.

Food was brought from Princeton, Ky., about thirty miles away, to feed other prisoners today.

All night prison guards, deputy sheriffs and citizens, all heavily armed, formed a ring about the kitchen. A few shots were exchanged.

The report of the apportionment committee gave Nebraska's share of the five million missionary fund as $100,000. The dates for the campaign were set at December 9 to 16, 1923. The apportionment among the churches was adopted on a per capita basis of $6.50 per member, after much discussion.

In the resolution adopted the conference pledged loyal support of law and order and especially in upholding the amendment on prohibition.

A resolution introduced by Rev. M. A. Bullock that the national body be memorialized for the diversion of 7 per cent of the missionary funds to ministerial relief, was adopted by a vote of 27 to 7, after prolonged discussion. The present rate is 4 per cent, which yields no more than $255 to a retired minister and less for the widow.

F. A. High, superintendent of the anti saloon league told of the propaganda against prohibition. He said that if the United States holds fast world wide prohibition was bound to come within a few years, declared ministers were more responsible than any other class in bringing prohibition and would be more responsible than others in holding it.

Rev. Nehemiah Boynton of New York will be the speaker for the closing session Thursday evening. Boynton will also give the principal address at the men's dinner at the Y. M. C. A. at 6:30 p. m.

THIRTY ENTER PLANE RACES

SEVERAL NEW RECORDS EXPECTED TO BE MADE.

Meet at St. Louis Field to Last Three Days, With Men From Army, Navy and Civilians List Competing.

ST. LOUIS FLYING FIELD, BRIDGETON, Mo, Oct. 4.—Thirty pilots lined their racing planes at the starting posts today, awaiting the word to go in the first three races of the international air meet here. The meet will continue for three days.

As the day dawned cold and clear, with a dry, firm field for landing, indications pointed to the setting of several new records.

Men in uniform scurried about the hangars, and helmeted pilots tested their steeds until the field resounded as tho a thousand machine guns were being fired at once.

Assistant Secretary of War Davis, who is scheduled to arrive around noon in an airplane, will get a salute of twenty-one guns from artillery units here.

Eight civilian entries were to start in the Flying club of St. Louis trophy at 11 a. m. This race is 150 kilometers, three times around the triangular thirty-one-mile course.

Seven army pursuit planes were to take the air at 12:30 in the 200-kilometer race for the Mitchell trophy, offered by Brigadier General William Mitchell, in memory of his brother, killed in air service overseas. These fastest of regular army service planes are expected to set a record close to the 250 mile an hour speed already demonstrated by the special planes entered in the Pulitzer race, which will be held Saturday.

Fifteen entries, including thirteen army planes, one navy and one marine, will start at 2 p. m. on the military observation race of 300 kilometers.

C. S. Jones, Garden City, N. Y., won the "on-to-St. Louis" efficiency race for airplanes, it was announced today.

Jones flew the 900 miles from his home to St. Louis last week carrying one passenger, in 47 hours, 9 minutes flying time, in his 90 horsepower Curtiss oriole .He wins a prize of $500 and cup.

Twelve aviators finished in this race, starting from all parts of the country. The winnedrs were picked on an "all-round" calculations involving speed, distance, horsepower and number of passengers.

H. F. Cole, Minneapolis; who flew the 900 miles here in 27 hours, 26 minutes, without passengers, won second prize of $300.

W. W. Meyer, Chicago, in a Heath biplane, placed third, getting $150 prize money. L. B. Sperry, Farmingdale, L. I., flying the "Spry Messenger" which placed fourth and won $100.

MISSION HOME IS FOUNDED

Building Donated by Mrs. Lauretta Schreiner Turned Into Home and School.

Alpha home at Fremont, founded by the Abraham Lincoln Mission association of Lincoln, is one of the latest Nebraska institutions for the homeless children and other destitute persons. The property was donated by Mrs. Lauretta J. Schreiner, one of the incorporators of the association, and comprises a house of twenty-two rooms and fifteen acres of ground. The upper floor of the house will be the school room, and residents of the home will find employment in beautifying the property and growing nursery stock, fruits and vegetables for their own use and for sale to raise funds for the association."

The association was incorporated recently with the avowed purpose of conducting a non-dividend paying business, the establishment and maintenance of Lincoln memorial mission homes, industrial schools and colleges. It expects to provide homes for the homeless, help for the needy, and mental, physical and spiritual culture for all classes. It is undenominational.

The incorporators are Dr. B. E. Nicola of the College View sanitarium, and Mrs. Nicola; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pelmulder; Mrs. Lauretta J. Schreiner of Fremont, and Ethan Allen Brown. Dr. Nicola heads the medical department, Mr. Brown the soliciting, and Mr. Pelmulder the industrial. Mr. Pelmulder's nursery is present headquarters for the association, and a dividend from the business will henceforth be devoted to its work. Mrs. Schreiner will remain at Fremont as superintendent of Alpha home. She gained publicity last year by going on a hunger strike to avoid putting her children in the public school.

"The incorporators realize that the success of their efforts will depend on the cooperation and liberality of the public," says Mr. Brown, who has been active in charitable enterprises for thirty-five years, "and are anxious to acquaint the public with their proposition."

HEAVY RAINS ARE SHOWN IN REPORT

Meteorologist Loveland's Weekly Crop Story Says Seven Inches Fell in a Number of Nebraska Localities.

The corn and wheat region bulletin issued by G. A. Loveland, meteorologist, contains the following summary of weather and crop conditions in Nebraska for the week ending October 2: The week was warm and wet with considerable cloudiness in most parts of the state. The temperature averaged 5 degrees above the normal. Exceedingly heavy showers occurred Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Adams, Buffalo and Howard counties, and the region eastward to the Missouri river. The rain fell in heavy showers with frequently some hail but with little damage from the hailstones. Th eweekly rainfall exceeded 7 inches at several places and ranged between 3 and 5 inches in most of the region outlined above. In the extreme southeastern counties it was between 1 and 2 inches. In the southwestern counties it was lgiht, less than one-tenth inch, but in most of the western two-thirds of the state it was between one-half and one inch. In the region of heavy rainfall the lowlands were flooded whics caused some damage to crops. Winter wheat seeding progressed well except in the region of heavy rainfall where it was retaoded by rain and wet soil. Silo filling is in progress. Pastures are exceedingly good. Corn is nearly all matured beyond danger of damage by frost.

WIFE FLED WITH CONVICT

Kansas Prison Guard Believes Spouse Eloped With Released Prisoner.

LANSING, Kas., Oct. 4.—Believing that his wife has eloped with E. E ("Baldy") Miller, ex-convict, who recently was released from the Kansas penitentiary here, O. M. Pennington, guard at the prison, has instituted a search for the couple. He will charge Miller with a violation of the Mann act, if the couple is found.

Miller was a "delivery boy," carrying groceries and meats from the prison store to the homes of officers of the prison while serving a five-year sentence for embezzlement in Sedan, Kas. On his route was the Pennington home.

Pennington's suspicions were aroused for the first time three weeks before Miller was discharged from the prison, he said today. He returned home one afternoon unexpectedly and found the rear door of his home locked. When he was about to turn away his wife opened the door and when he entered Miller walked from the bedroom.

Miller was released from the prison September 20. The following day he was seen to board an interurban car at Richardson, north of here, in company with Mrs Pennington. They went to Leavenworth, and it is said they later went to Kansas City. They are thought to be there still.

My Pal / Just a Girl that Men Forget	John Steel / Henry Burr	19131	.75

Two old songs beloved of "Us, the common people," in the smooth rolling harmony of men's voices, with subtle undercurrents of orchestral music.

"Three Thousand Years Ago" purports to be sung in Egyptian, though you will understand it without trouble. "Bologny" is a study from "tough life," and a true one.

A typical "pal" song and a heart-song in the most popular of popular styles by two of the most popular of popular tenors. Both songs in waltz time.

Stephen Foster's "Oh Susanna" combined into a pleasant, wholesome fox trot. The Waltz is made of Foster melodies that every one knows.

The "Mamma" seems replacing the "Mammy" in American popular music. "That Big Blond Mamma" is a joyful-stupe sort of number with a fine dancing-rhythm. "Sobbin' Blues" is one of the strangest dances since the "Wang-Wang Blues."

Curious Facts Concerning the Book of Books

The Bible has 1189 chapters; 929 belong to the Old Testament and 260 to the New. The 117th Psalm is the middle chapter of the Bible, its number being 595. Exactly 594 chapters precede it, and 594 follow it.

The middle chapter of the Bible is also the shortest; containing only 33 words, composed of 133 letters. The longest is the 119th Psalm, containing 176 verses, 2,445 words, and 10,146 letters.

The text of the Bible is divided into 31,101 verses; 23,144 for the Old, and 7,957 for the New Testament. The shortest verse in the Bible is John XI: 35, containing only two words with nine letters. One verse in the Bible contains all the letters of the alphabet except J—Ezra 7: 21.

The famous inscription on the Liberty Bell, in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, is taken from Leviticus 25:10. It reads, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

NEW SLAP AT DRY AGENTS

PINCHOT'S CAMPAIGN IS OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

Department of Justice Injected Into Prohibition Enforcement Situation by Flagrant Violations of Law.

By Lawrence Martin.

(Copyright, 1923, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot's drastic campaign against liquor law violators is an event of national importance in its bearing on Volstead law enforcement.

It constitutes one of the most resounding slaps recently administered to those in charge of federal enforcement of the prohibition law.

It has incensed the drys, all over the country, more than ever against Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair whom they blame for 99 per cent of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes' troubles.

It has injected the department of justice into the prohibition enforcement situation.

It is another step towards the climax which, it has been apparent for some time, is coming in prohibition enforcement—a climax which may occur this winter in congress, when an airing will be demanded of the internal bickerings, the pulling at cross purposes, the intrigues and quarrels which have marked prohibition enforcement within recent months.

Some time ago Attorney General Daugherty wrote all states attorneys general asking their cooperation in prohibition enforcement. Pinchot, shortly afterward, noting the failure of federal dry agents to dry up five Pennsylvania counties known in Washington as among the wettest in the country, called on Daugherty for help. A department of justice agent went in and with state troopers, staged a clean-up.

Pinchot's latest smash at the Philadelphia wets followed another request for help from the department of justice. This help was granted.

This all makes it look as tho Commissioner Haynes' force in Pennsylvania were falling down on its job. But it isn't Haynes' fault, his friends say. They blame it all on Blair, who, they say, forced Haynes against his earnest protest to reorganize the Pennsylvania unit.

The reorganization, drys say, has not worked out well for prohibition enforcement.

Now Pinchot calls in the department of justice. There is a closing of saloons and blind pigs, some of which flourished, federal agents said, not far from the federal prohibition enforcement office.

The result is to bring Haynes' men into disrepute.

CURTAIN FALLS ON LOVE TRAGEDY

"MAN-WOMAN" IS ACQUITTED

"Freddie" Thompson of Chicago Dons Skirt After Release From Jail.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4. — "Freddie" Thompson, the strange "man-woman" who late yesterday was acquitted here of the charge of killing Richard C. Tesmer in a hold-up, was back in his flat today, a puzzle to police and the prosecutor.

To all intents and purposes "Freddie" is legally married to Frank Carrick, a former taxi driver, and to Marie Clark of Detroit.

"Freddie" frankly admitted in court that he was married to both. Last night when "Freddie" was released from his cell, Carrick took him home. Marie did not attend the trial, nor was she at the jail doors waiting for her husband, but "Freddie" admitted she was in the city.

Whether officials will take action in this strange situation will be decided at a conference between the prosecutor and police.

"Freddie" and his husband kept in seclusion today and it was intimated they would leave Chicago for some western city to start life anew.

When the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty" after two hours deliberation, "Freddie" rushed forward and thanked the jurors in what patently was a forced masculine voice. A moment later the voice changed to soprano in reach, exclaiming "My goodness, my goodness, I'm glad to be free."

Before leaving the jail, "Freddie" donned a skirt and said he felt comfortable for the first time since his arrest.

BLAMES CHICAGO FOR QUAKE

Scientist Declares Diversion of Water From Lake Michigan Unsettled Earth.

CHICAGO, (By Mail).—The Japanese earthquake was caused by the failure of Chicago to build a subway back in 1899, according to a statement made by a St. Louis scientist.

The reasoning is simple he says. Had Chicago built a subway they would have been forced to use an electrolytic method of sewage disposal, in which event the drainage canal, from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, would never have been built.

The earthquake, he theorizes, was the result of an abnormal quantity of water being diverted from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico, through the drainage canal. This in turn caused a change of balance on the earth's surface that brought about the Japanese earthquake.

To this same state of affairs he also attributes the climatic changes that have affected the cotton crop.

ASK PROBE OF WEBB DEATH

Relatives of Heiress Who Died Mysteriously Want Special Grand Jury.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Relatives of Mrs. Gertrude Webb will today ask Governor Smith for a special grand jury hearing of the circumstances of her death.

They based their appeal on the chemists' report that he had found mercury in his examination of Mrs. Webb's viscera. Quantative tests were made today in an effort to determine whether the mercury was a lethal dose.

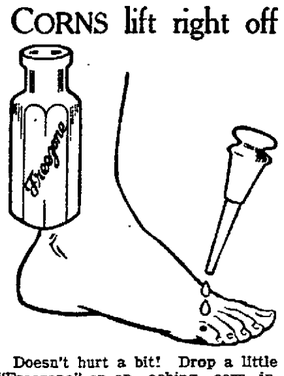

Examination of Mrs. Webb's organs was started when her physician refused to issue a death certificate when she died last week from a mysterious malady.

Two wills left by Mrs. Webb are being contested in court by her relatives. One, in which her $2,000,000 fortune is left her husband, Charles Webb, was made during her illness. The other, an earlier one is not so favorable to him.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Science may govern future marriages and obliviate the divorce evil. Ante-nuptial blood tests to prevent mismating and promote happy marriages is predicted by surgeons within the next twenty years. This fact was brought to light at the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American association of obstetricians, gynecologists and abdominal surgeons, recently held here.

WALTON OUT AFTER FUNDS

SEEKS MONEY TO FINANCE HIS FIGHT ON THE KLAN.

Declares Election Illegal, Calls Another and Secures Injunction Against Certifying Election Returns.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 4.—A strenuous campaign for funds to finance a "finish fight" on the ku klux klan in Oklahoma was launched today by Gov. J. C. Walton.

Declaring that Tuesday's voting, which resulted in adoption of the constitutional amendment designed to permit his impeachment, was a "klan election and a klan vote," as well as illegal, the governor announced martial law would be continued indefinitely in Oklahoma if necessary to subdue the "invisible empire."

The governor said the martial law campaign against the klan in Oklahoma had already cost $40,000. Opponents of the governor claim it has cost several times that amount.

Governor Walton has made two definite moves to outlaw Tuesday's election. First he filed his proclamation with the secretary of state declaring the election illegal and calling another election on the same issue for December 6, and secondly secured a temporary restraining order in district court preventing election and commissioners from certifying the results of the election.

The governor's enemies, acting on the assumption the election was legal, are taking positive steps toward removing him from office.

State legislators held secret caucuses preliminary to calling a special session as soon as possible to start impeachment proceedings. Petition was also filed for a grand jury to investigate the governor's use of secret service agents.

"At the election called for December 6, the question of who shall rule in Oklahoma—the visible republic or the invisible empire—will be decided finally and decisively," Governor Walton said.

"The klux guns of the nation are now trained on me and I am daily in receipt of threats of assassination, but I had rather die by the hand of an assassin than die the death of a coward.

"In the next sixty days will be fought the most historic political battle in American history since the civil war and the question will be decided on December 6 whether this state and possibly this nation shall be controlled by the ku klux klan."

NEW YORK. — (By Mail.) — The American public health association has announced that Dr. Watson S. Rankin, the health commissioner of North Carolina, has been appointed as field secretary for the work of the committee on municipal health department practice. The association is offering a series of awards to cities for the most adequate community health service.

BIGGER BOMBER POSSIBLE

Designer of Largest Heavier Than Air Flyer Could Construct One Four Times Larger.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—A mammoth heavier-than-air flyer, "four times the size of the Barling bomber," can be constructed and operated successfully," W. H. Barling said today.

The designer of the biggest airplane which completed a successful flight at St. Louis field yesterday with Major General Mason Patrick, chief of the army air service, at the controls, declared he would "stake his reputation as a successful designer that it will be an outstanding success.

"I not only feel convinced that it is practicable to build an airplane four times as big, but I'm willing to design one and start construction if the government requests it," he said.

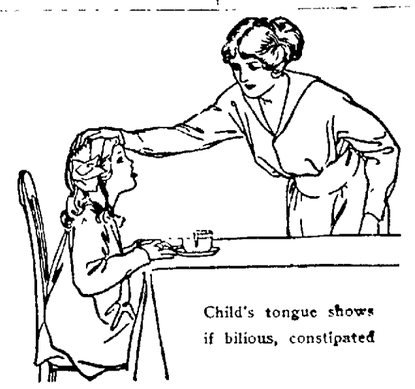

The Barling machine has a wing spread of 128 feet and weighs 40,000 pounds loaded. It has a maximum speed of 90 miles an hour.

NEWS FROM NEBRASKA

FINDS SUICIDE'S BODY

Girl in Studio Had Seen Figure Swinging in Room Across Hall.

OMAHA, Oct. 4.—All day Tuesday, Wednesday and again this morning, Miss Irene Eaton, employed in the Osata studios in the Lyric building, watched fascinated, thru a stained glass door what appeared to be the body of a man swinging in a room across the hall.

This morning her curiosity got the better of her and she notified police.

Officers forced the door and found the body of William Rollman, twenty-six, formerly a stationary fireman, swinging from a chandelier.

Rollman had hanged himself with two neckties twisted together and tied to the chandelier. He had been dead several days.

Rollman had rented the room last week, saying he wanted it for a violin studio. His violin and a camp stool which he had stood on to fasten the "noose" to the chandelier was the only furniture in the room.

NEBRASKA NEWS

Aurora—At the Aurora Rotary club Wednesday noon, Judge George F. Corcoran of York delivered an address on the constitution and law enforcement. He spoke of the difficulties of enforcement of laws by officials unless public sentiment is behind them. Too much attention to the education and enlightenment of the people on the constitution and the benefits it has brought to the American people cannot be given, he declared. Speaking of law enforcement, Judge Corcoran declared that many parents, by their neglect of the best interests of their children, are sending them straight to the penitentiary.

Red Cloud—The Red Cloud school board has voted to grant a two days' vacation November 1 and 2 that all teachers may attend the meetings of the Southwest Nebraska Teachers' association at Holdrege on those days.

Red Cloud—The Texas Co. has been working here for the past three weeks placing storage tanks and erecting a warehouse on the railroad right-of-way just east of the public highway. The plans will require something like $10,000 to carry out. Facilities are provided for filling autos and tank wagons with gasoline at wagon prices.

Cowles—Physical examinations of pupils were conducted here by Dr. H. Cook, physician and E. H. Newhouse, optometrist of Red Cloud. From all the data it appears that there are fewer defective pupils here than a year ago. However in a number of cases the hearts were found not normal, showing effects of over-exertion and strain, probably in games and sports. The doctor advised frequent deep-breathing exercises and calisthenics.

Table Rock—H. P. Marble, who was born and grew to manhood in this vicinity, who has been in the Indian service of the government for the past fourteen years and is now superintendent of the Indian agency at Albuquerque, N. M., arrived in Table Rock on a brief visit to his father, M. H. Marble, of Table Rock and his sister, Mrs. Alice Woods, who lives west of town. For many years he was editor and publisher of the Humboldt Leader, which he founded at Humboldt, Neb., in 1896.

Red Cloud—The Red Cloud senior high school reports an attendance of 98 per cent last month, with only seven cases of tardiness. The high school has sixty-three non-resident pupils enrolled. Last year the number was fifty-nine. The tuition charge for each is $108, making an income of $6,700 to the district.

Franklin—Hippo J. Yelken, who so nearly lost his right arm by getting it into the shelling wheels of a corn sheller about ten days ago, is resting easily at the home of his father, John Yelken. The flesh and muscles were terribly torn and mangled, but the wounds are healing nicely and the physicians are confident of saving the arm and two fingers which were not taken off at the time of the accident.

Table Rock—George W. Gilbert, a resident of Table Rock and vicinity for the past fifty years, died at his home here at 10 a. m., aged seventy-six years. He is survived by a widow, a son, Edgar Gilbert, who lives on a farm two miles northeast of town and a daughter, Mrs. Cora Kent, who lives three miles northwest of Table Rock and several grandchildren and two great grandchildren. He died from bronchial-pneumonia, and had been ill only about ten days. His widow has been an invalid for several years.

Franklin—At the annual meeting of the Franklin county fair association, the following officers were elected for the year beginning January 4, 1924: president, L. B. Robinett, Franklin; vice president, Ed. Vanear, Hildreth, secretary, A. T. Ready, Franklin; treasurer, Jas. Grout; superintendent of ground, S. N. Braden; superintendent of the hall, R. M. Trumball; marshal, C. G. Garrett. All these officers are re-elections except C. G. Garrett takes the place of Henry Stienkruger who refused to serve. The reports show that the receipts will probably exceed the fixed expenses by a very small margin. In view of the threatening weather during fair week which very materially reduced the attendance on Thursday, ordinarily the best day. This report caused considerable surprise.

Beatrice—The first of a number of clubs of Gage county teachers will be organized Saturday at Adams. These clubs are to replace the county teachers' institute. The Adams meeting will be addressed by Professor Rose Clark of Wesleyan university. The succeeding Saturday another club will be formed at Barneston. There will also be organizations formed at Filley, Cortland, Odell and Beatrice. First aid instruction will be given at each meeting by Secretary Tom Wilson of the Beatrice Y. M. C. A.

CHURCH PLANS CONVENTION

National Gathering of United Danish Evangelical Lutheran Church to Be Held at Fremont.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 4.—The United Danish Evangelical Lutheran Church of America will hold its 1924 annual national convention in Fremont according to word received here by Rev. James C. Peterson, pastor of the local Danish church.

The national body, with nearly 1000 delegates will assemble in Fremont in June. A special tabernacle to house the convention is the plan of the local congregation. Committees are already being appointed to make preparations for the convention. The central committee, appointed at a meeting held Tuesday night is composed of C. H. Christensen, chairman; Roy Lang, E. E. Bertelsen and John Brandt.

Fremont was chosen as the site of the convention in response to an invitation from the local church, its central location and railroad facilities. In addition to the delegates to the sessions from all parts of the country, plans are being made to care for 2,000 more visitors and interested laymen.

Jail Does Not Daunt Cupid.

OMAHA, Oct. 4.—Rose White, 22 years old, 2437 Mary street, who was given a day's stay of execution on her sentence of two days for speeding by Municipal Judge Dineen to enable her to spend a day with her sweetheart, who came to Omaha from Los Angeles to visit her, filde notice in the county court yesterday of her intention to obtain a marriage license.

George L. Berger, whom Miss White was permitted to visit before starting to serve her jail sentence, which was cut short by a mayor's pardon, and Miss White are to be married October 14.

W. C. T. U. EXPRESSES APPROVAL

Vigorous Drive Against Bootleggers in Dodge County.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 4.—County Attorney Gumb's recent vigorous campaign and prosecution of bootleggers in Dodge county has made a good impression upon the W. C. T. U. chapter as is evidenced by a letter from the president, Mrs. E. Anderson, sent in behalf of the organization.

Gumb's recent warning to bootleggers of the county and prosecution that resulted in heavy fines and jail sentences for several of those arrested is heartily approved by the local chapter.

"It means so much to the future welfare of our community that the law breakers be brought to justice. If we can serve you in any way in these matters, please let us know," says Mrs. Anderson in conveying the message of approval.

NEW CABINET FOR GERMANY

STRESEMANN BELIEVES HASTE IS NECESSARY.

Plans Economic Restoration of Reich, to Show Allies He Intends to Increase Earning Capacity for Reparations.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—Chancellor Gustav Stresemann at noon today was completing his conversations for formation of a new government.

It was expected the new "small cabinet" will be completed immediately so there will be little delay in Stresemann's pan to rush thru his ambitious economic program.

Stresemann was said to believe that the greatest haste is necessary in beginning his work for the economic restoration of the reich, to show the allies he intends to increase Germany's earning capacity for payment of reparations.

"The chancellor feels he must act at once to free Germany's economic wheels from the mud in which they are now all but hopelessly buried," one of Stresemann's supporters said.

Stresemann tendered his own resignation with that of his coalition cabinet to President Ebert early today. It was immediately accepted and the president charged Stresemann with formation of a new government.

There was every indication that the new cabinet will be on a much stronger basis than the old coalition government, which was hampered at every turn by the inability of Stresemann to harmonize the divergent interests of the parties supporting him.

With a new bourgeoise cabinet, observers believed, the chancellor may be able to establish virtually a right wing dictatorship which will at once calm the internal situation and enable the government to take a firm stand for economic construction.

NERVOUS HORSE AND PIANO

Combination That Caused Supreme Court to Put in Hour of Its Time Thursday.

A nervous horse attached to a Wymore dray way back in 1920 was responsible for the supreme court having to sit for an hour Thursday to determine the responsibility for its skittishness. Owen L. Jones, a citizen of Wymore, deciding that home life needed a little pepping up, purchased, thru a salesman, a piano from the Ross P. Curtice company of Lincoln.

The musical instrument was shipped in a freight car under a bill of lading which placed it free on board the cars at Wymore. Owen Jones was ill at the time, and his brother, R. J. Jones, got a dray and sent it after the piano. It was in process of being transferred from the freight car to the dray when one of the horses, alarmed at some noise, became frightened. As a result of his jerking the wagon the piano fell to the ground, suffering a broken leg and some hurts to its innards.

The facts were communicated to the Curtice company, and the instrument sent back to Lincoln and repaired under instructions from R. J. Jones. Before these were complete Owen Jones died, and his estate refused to accept the piano. The lower court trial resulted in a verdict for the defendant, by direction of the court, who refused to allow correspondence as to the ordering of repairs to be received.

The legal question is whether the piano was actually delivered. The plaintiff says it is entitled to recover the purchase price because being sent free on board the cars at Wymore, it had been delivered when it had been pulled out of the car and partly onto the wagon.

RUNAWAY PRISONER CAUGHT

Conrda Debus Escaped on Way to Lancaster and Is Picked Up at Grand Island.

Conrad Debus, a parole violator of the state reformatory, who was captured by Sheriff Koenig at Scottsbluff, escaped in Lincoln Wednesday night. He was caught at Grand Island Thursday noon and will be returned at once. Sheriff Koenig brought the prisoner to Grand Island in his automobile and there took the train for Lincoln arriving here Wednesday night. He had implicit faith in Debus and told him he might go to his home for the balance of the night and report at the hotel in the morning to go back to the reformatory. He did not report. He was traced to Grand Island and captured.

"This is the first time that a prisoner ever betrayed my confidence," said Sheriff Koenig, who is an old time peace officer. "It was mreely a betrayal of confidence."

Debus had written to his father at North Platte to send him some money at Grand Island, and when he went to call for the money he was nabbed by the chief of police.

MOTHER WILL SELL HER LITTLE INFANT

Seventeen-Year-Old Litchfield, Ill., Wife, Deserted by Husband, Gives Child Chance in Life.

LITCHFIELD, Ill., Oct. 4.—Geneva Mildred Jennings, seven months old, laughed and cooed in her crib today while her seventeen-year-old mother sat in a little chair at the side of the crib alternately watching the clock and the child.

Late today Geneva Mildred will be taken to another home—to the highest bidder.

Unable to properly care for Geneva and her two year old son, the girlish mother, whose husband disappeared after serving a term in the penitentiary, yesterday advertised in the newspapers that she would auction the infant to the highest bidder. All day women of this little town thronged the modest quarters of the young mother, seeking some way that would enable her to retain the baby.

"No," she said bravely thru her tears. "I want Geneva Mildred to be given the right car. I can't give it to her and temporary help won't do."

So Mrs. Fred Traubee, wife of a well to do merchant, made the "highest bid." She promised to care for the baby as she would her own children. Mrs. Jennings agreed to permit adoption of the baby and today court officials are preparing the necessary legal documents.

Late today the legal transfer of the baby to the Traulbee home will be made.

The girl wife, who was married at the age of fourteen, waited until dusk yesterday before agreeing to give Geneva away, hoping against hope that her husband would appear at the last moment to keep the little family intact.

After her husband, Lloyd, was sent to the penitentiary, Mrs. Jennings secured work in a shoe factory here, but she found it impossible to work and care for the infant. With the infant in another home, Mrs. Jennings said she could continue her work and take proper care of the boy.

Tomorrow she will go back to work. Today she kept vigil at the side of the little crib.

APPROVE POINCARE STAND

French Cabinet Agrees No Proposlas From Germany Up for Consideration.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The cabinet this afternoon unanimously approved the attitude which Premier Poincare has assumed toward Germany that no proposals from the German government are on the table for consideration.

The resolution adopted by the ministers upheld Poincare's policy of neutral observation of the internal events in the German reich.

Officials withheld comment on news of the fall of the Stresemann government in Berlin early this morning, but it was indicated a new German cabinet will meet the attitude Premier Poincare has maintained up to this time.

ROOF DAMAGED BY FLAMES

Believe Defective Wiring Caused Early Morning Fire in Attic at 2125 Potter Street.

Fire burned a large hole in the roof at the home of Robert Blackwell, 2125 Potter, early Thursday. Neighbors discovered the blaze and firemen answered an alarm at 7:55 a. m. They soon had the flames under control. Chemicals were used mainly in combating the blaze and little damage was done to lower rooms by water. No one was in the house when the blaze broke out. Defective wiring is thought to have caused the fire, according to Fire Chief Hansen. It is believed that it started in the attic.

PUREBRED LIVESTOCK GAIN.

OTTAWA, Can.—(By Mail.)—Purebred livestock made important numerical gains in Canada in the decade between 1911 and 1921, according to agricultural census figures issued by the dominion bureau of statistics. Of the total of 3,610,500 horses in Canada in 1921, the report says, 47,782, or 13.2 per cent, were purebred. This was an increase of 44 per cent for the decade. Purebred cattle numbered 296,556, an increase in ten years of 139 per cent. Of 3,198,219 sheep in Canada, 93,643 were classed as purebred. There were 41,143 purebred swine in 1921, compared with 56,457 in 1911, an increase of 43.7 per cent.

Sinister was discussed at the federation of labor meeting.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

CARS CRASH AT CREEK BRIDGE

SEVERAL INJURED AND BOTH AUTOS BADLY WRECKED.

Big Hudson Plows Into Side of Ford Coupe Then Tears Away Part of the Steel Structure On West O Road.

Five persons were injured, none seriously, at 10:45 p. m. Wednesday on the West "O" street road when a big Hudson touring car with six passengers plowed into the side of a Ford coupe and a few seconds later crashed into the south railing of the Salt creek bridge west of Lincoln. The railing was torn out for a considerable distance leaving the car hanging over the edge of the bridge.

Four boys dressed in naval reserve uniforms in the Hudson received cuts and bruises. Two girls were of the party. It was reported that they were not injured. Harry Turner is said to have been at the wheel. The names of the boys as given at the hospital:

Albert Lange, student, 2765 Randolph, lower lip cut and injury to left arm.

Bud Taylor, 1542 North Twenty-third, cut on arm.

Harry Turner, 1332 South Eleventh, cut on forehead.

According to Dr. F. B. Hollenbeck who attended the injured men at St. Elizabeth's hospital none was seriously injured. Mr. Turner probably hardest hit, is suffering from a deep cut on the forehead about two inches long. After their wounds were dressed the men returned to their homes.

Hurls Coupe to Side.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Clayton, 330 North Thirtieth street, and Will Staley, Mr. Clayton's uncle, were in the coupe. They had crossed the bridge and were driving slowly toward Lincoln. Mr. Clayton said that when he saw the Hudson approaching, he held close to the south edge of the road. The car swerved about thirty-five feet to the east of the bridge and struck the coupe a center jolt. The smaller car toppled over with the three passengers temporarily imprisoneu. Mrs. Clayton received cuts about the hand and wrist from broken glass. Her wounds were dressed at the Lincoln Sanitarium.

Robert Shaw and Esmund Akeyson, according to their stories, were driving west on O street and had reached the east approach to the viaduct when a Hudson car going in the same direction, passed them. Both boys estimated their own speed at between twenty and thirty miles an hour. They said that the other car was going much faster. They had not reached the west viaduct approach, they said, when they heard the crash.

Mr. Staley said he heard two voices coming from some portion of the creek bed under the bridge. Each voice, he said, apparently carried assurance that injuries were not serious.

The Hudson struck the railing at about the center of the bridge. Beneath the point of contact is a pile of brush which accumulated from flood waters. When two of the party were thrown from the car, they presumably missed iron cross-bars, were hurled clear off the wreckage and the brush broke the force of the fall.

Wreckage to Bridge.

The low railing was sprung nearly four feet leaving a big, open gap almost large enough to receive a smaller car. A wrecking crew was called to tow in the larger car and later returned for the coupe.

Bud Taylor said that the two girls who were in the car at the time of the accident escaped unhurt. He stated that he and one of the girls were thrown out of the car and into the mud bank at the side of the creek. Taylor received a slight cut on the arm. He said that the car belongs to Harry Turner and his brother, G. W. Turner. He would not give the names of the girls.

After the collision two cars picked up the six occupants of the Hudson and took the four boys to the St. Elizabeth's hospital and the two girls to their homes.

In explanation of how the accident occurred Taylor said, "The other fellows told me that the Ford car had more than its share of the road and that when Mr. Turner attempted to pass the coupe near the bridge he misjudged the distance. I do not know how fast we were going."

CALLS IT DISFIGUREMENT

Commissioner Cowgill Camping On Trail of Utilities Regarding Joint Pole Issue.

According to figures submitted by Commissioner Cowgill, property owners along the west side of Ninth street, P to S streets, will spend approximately $5,450 on new walks and for an ornamental lighting system. The work is now under way. The street department head is now camping on the trail of the gas company and the traction company with a view to shelving thirty-three old poles and putting twelve new poles for joint utility use in their place.

He refers to this present string of old poles as a disfigurement. Altho there is some little dispute as to what pole replacement will cost, Mr. Cowgill insists that it is not a great deal when measured with what the property owners are spending.

The commissioner celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his coming to Lincoln by entertaining complainants who allege that the new pavement along Peach street, Eleventh to Fourteenth, is not what it should be. Mr. Cowgill is inclined to agree. He says there is some doubt as to whether or not a new coating will do. The improvement has not yet been accepted by the council.

PROFITS FROM PRISON LABOR

PENITENTIARY INDUSTRIES PAY FOR THEIR OPERATION.

Shirt Factory Shows Surplus of Nearly Thirty Thousand—All of Earnings Go to Pay for Prison Maintenance.

The two rather modest industries at the state penitentiary do not pay half the expenses of the institution according to Chairman A. E. Allyn of the board of control. For many years there has been no claim on the part of state officials that the penitentiary is self-supporting or anywhere near it. The board of control has, in recent years, sought to furnish employment to as many men in the prison as possible. The prisoners employed by the Handcraft Furniture company are being taught a useful trade. Men employed in the shirt factory at least are taught how to use a sewing machine.

For seventeen months ending September 1, 1923, the shirt factory made $27,075 over and above expenses.

The furniture factory profits for the year have not been ascertained to the extent of the cost of material entering into the goods manufactured, but the sales and expenses for labor indicate a good profit.

Expenditures for the support of the entire prison plant for the year ending July 1, 1923, were $199,376. For the previous year the cost was $191,459. The industries, not counting anything for the cost of material for the furniture factory, brought in a revenue of $103,000.

Manager L. M. Eastman of the furniture factory reports that the factory in eight years' operation has accumulated a surplus and undivided profits of $28,705, which is an average of $3,500 a year.

All receipts from the two industries are turned into the state general fund and are drawn out by the board of control to pay general maintenance costs of the institution.

The Shirt Factory.

Two hundred fifty men constitute the average force of prisoners employed in the shirt factory, the product of which is bought from the state by the D. M. Oberman Manufacturing company. The inmates in this factory drew a total of $693.40 for the month of September. The pay which goes to inmates is small, the highest earnings per month being about $6. Two employed part time on books earn $8 or more a month.

The factory was instituted in March, 1922. Since then 66,073 dozen shirts have been made. For these the state received from 72 cents to 87 cents a dozen, the average per dozen being 84 cents. For this output the state received $55,641.89 up to September 1, all of which was turned into the state treasury and later drawn upon for payment of maintenance of the entire prison.

The total expense of the shirt factory since it was started is $28,566.71, which shows a profit of $28,566.71 over expenses. The expenses incurred comprise $1,722.69 for installing the plant, $9,508.27 salary for guards and $12,176.94 paid to inmates for labor performed. A truck, with repairs and cost of gas and oil, cost $1,098.81. Another expense item is $4,060 paid to the state for electric power.

Furniture Factory.

The average number of prisoners employed in the furniture factory is seventy-five. Civilian employes hired comprise a manager, assistant manager, foreman, assistant foreman and two truck drivers. Prison inmates furnish all labor not performed by these civilians. The manager receives a salary of $275 a month. The prisoners earn for themselves all the way from $16 to $27.37 a month.

The output of the factory consists of fibre furniture which is sold to jobbers and furniture dealers.

The total sales of the products during the period ending July 1, 1923, amounted to $121,231.90, which was $24163.77 more than the sales for the previous year.

For the year there was paid to inmates thru the warden of the penitentiary for labor, $12,818.03. To the penitentiary there was paid $22,622 during the year. For civilian employes the annual pay roll is between $10,000 and $12,000.

MAN WHO KILLED H. D. WILLIAMS SEEN ON WAY OUT.

Report Made by an Employe of the Gooch Mill Who Had Not Heard of Killing When He Saw the Suspect.

REWARDS OFFERED.

The following rewards have been offered for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Homer D. Williams, killed at the State Oil company station Monday evening:

State Oil company	$500
State Journal	100
Lancaster county	100
A. B. A. Oil company	25
Coryell Oil company	25
City Police Department	50

Evidence reached the police Wednesday that the man who shot and killed Homer D. Williams left the city afoot. That came from an employe of the Gooch mill who saw a man, dressed as was the slayer of Williams, answering his description as to height and weight, passing the mill and following the Burlington's Table Rock line south past the mill. The employe at that time had heard nothing of the oil station killing, but his attention was drawn because the man avoided getting close to the lights of the mill and even turned back that he might go around the circle of light. The last seen of the man he was drilling south along the Kansas City line of the road. He kept looking back and seemed to be in a hurry.

Officers were much put out that the information should have been so slow in reaching them. Had they known as much that night, even if the story had come to them at midnight after the miller had heard of the killing, they would have had something definite to trace. Two days later the man had a chance to be in Kansas City.

Nevertheless, wire mesages were sent to police at St. Joseph, Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., asking them to locate a man answering descriptions given. Train crews are being asked to keep a sharp lookout for such a man.

Keepers of rooming houses about the city have been asked by the police to give any tip possible concerning the man sought. It is believed that he may have stayed in the city for some time, that he probably had a room here and that he may have left some clue behind. A search of the room he had used might bring out valuable evidence. So far no such information has been received.

Eight hundred dollars in reward money has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the man wanted or information leading to his arrest and conviction.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Boy Hangs Self When Love Proffers Are Rejected.

AUBURN, Neb., Oct. 3.—Eugene Moore, nineteen-year-old lad of this city, attempted to take his life Tuesday by hanging. He was discovered and cut down in time to save him from death, altho he had become unconscious. The lad had been at work for apple growers at Peru, packing apples. He fell in love with Miss Verna Pierce of Peru, who rejected his suite. He came home and hanged himself in the barn by an improvised noose.

DOANE PRESIDENT TALKS ON REMOVAL

John N. Bennett Tells Congregational Delegates Facts About Various Rumors—Discussion of College Needs.

The stories of the probable removal of Doane college from Crete were explained by President John N. Bennett at the luncheon given Wednesday noon at the Grand hotel by Doane college to the pastors and other delegates present at the Nebraska Congregational conference. President Bennett spoke of the rumor that Doane would be removed to Union college, exchanging the Crete campus for that at College View. He said there was no foundation whatever for such a report, as no negotiations of the kind had been made or suggested. The second story that Doane was to be set down in Lincoln near the University of Nebraska was also said to be without foundation. The third, relating to a proposed removal to Beatrice, was said to have come before the trustees in June when a committee with E. J. Hainer as chairman was appointed to study the legal aspects. A report will be made to the trustees before coming January as to whether or not such a change could be made without loss. The trustees will then be at liberty to decide what seems best.

President Bennett also answered a question as to the attitude at Doane as to scientific investigations. He said the whole attitude at Doane is toward and upward, with entire respect for the past.

Illiteracy today is 27 per cent among the colored people of the United States.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

Illustrated by Neva Harrison

BENNY CHANGES HIS MIND ABOUT HIS LEGS.

OH, dear!" Benny fussed when his mama called him into the house to get the market-basket and run to the store. "I just wish I had three pairs of legs. Then one pair could stay here and play ball, another pair could run after the milk and the third pair could go to market. I don't see—"

"I thought so," laughed a merry voice, and Benny looked down in the grass to find his elfin friend Happy Giggles smiling up at him. "If you had been able to see, I'm quite sure you wouldn't be standing on the toe of my boot."

"I beg your pardon," he laughed rather awkwardly. "I'm sorry. I hope I didn't hurt you. When I spoke about seeing, I wasn't thinking of it in that light."

"I know it," laughed Happy Giggles. "You were going to say, you didn't see why little boys had only two legs instead of more. You probably won't believe me, but I have a wee friend who has more legs than you can shake a stick at. He has them all over his body. If you don't—but there, seeing is believing." And before Benny knew what was happening, he was whisked through the air and down under the dashing waves.

There clinging to a sea-weed, happy as a lark, sat a funny little

"I'm the Fellow."

sea-man whom Happy Giggles introduced to Benny as Davy Sea-urchin.

"I'm glad to see you, Mr. Sea-urchin," Benny said, politely. "I guess you're the chap Happy Giggles has been telling me about, who has so many legs."

"I'm the fellow," laughed Davy Sea-urchin, proudly. "And I am mighty glad I have them. They're all around my body. I can walk upright, on my side, upside down, or I can roll along like a ball." And without a word of warning, Davy Sea-urchin hopped down from the weed to the sand and showed Benny how he could walk, much to Benny's delight.

Benny and Happy Giggles laughed heartily. "And that's not all," Davy Sea-urchin boasted. "I have a mouth that has no less than five jaws and each jaw has a long, projecting, movable tooth." And Davy Sea-urchin turned over and showed Benny his strange mouth. "I'll say I'm a lucky fellow. What do you think about it?"

"I think they are mighty fine for a sea-urchin," Benny laughed, "but not for a little boy. I'd look funny with legs all over my body. Even three pairs would be out of place, I guess."

"So perhaps, Happy Giggles, you did me a favor by letting me step on your toe." The wee elfin laughed. "I made you change your mind about your legs. Now run along to the market and never wish again for more than one pair of legs."

Before Benny could answer, Happy Giggles and Davy Sea-urchin disappeared and Benny found himself in his own back yard. He ran into the house, and before you could say "Jack Robinson" he was down the road to the market.

WORDS of WISE MEN

A man should never be ashamed to own that he has been in the wrong—it is but saying, "I am wiser to-day than yesterday."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife.

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Why Madge Felt Uneasy About That Second Apartment.

"VELL! Vell! dis is nice. You come down to keep the mama company, yes?"

Mr. Schwartz rubbed his plump hands together unctuously, while his jolly rubicund face above his tubby figure beamed approval of my presence in his kitchen.

"Otto! where have you been so long?" his wife asked sharply. "Missis Graham is in a fery great hurry, and she has been waiting for you."

If she had said "the queen," or "the First Lady" she could have put no greater deference into her voice. There was also in her tones the conjugal disapproval which only an elderly spouse of many years' experience can express perfectly.

"I could not help it," her husband returned querulously. "Dot old lady in the first floor, left No. 2, kept me half an hour making a fuss because she have not enough heat, she says. I told her nobody else was kicking, und she said nobody else have spunk enough to say a vord to me. She called me a lazy old loafer. Vot do you think of that, Minna?"

That he was annoyed by his experience was clear, but I saw something else also—that he possessed that rare panacea for all ills, a genuine sense of humor. He was bubbling over with amusement at the memory of his tenant's peculiarities. That his conscience was as well fortified against criticism, I was certain, for he was a rara avis among janitors in his consideration for the comfort of the tenants.

Mrs. Schwartz made an indignant gesture.

"My Poor Minna!"

"Dot old voman!" she exclaimed with an intonation which removed the offending tenant to the other side of the continent. "You should spend goot time talking mit 'er! She iss crazy und she iss all the time fussy about somedings. Now go Mrs. Graham iss in a great hurry, for she iss going to cook a big dinner for company down on our stove here. Und you better get all your vork out of the way, so you can carry ting up und down for her."

I opened my mouth to protest, but closed it again as quickly. Mrs. Schwartz plainly had taken my dinner into her own keeping, and it behooved me to trail meekly along in her wake.

"My! My! Dot will be nice!" Mr. Schwartz beamed approval of the scheme as he turned to lead the way to the apartments I had wished to inspect. Once out of his wife's sight and hearing, however, he became suddenly grave.

"I am very glad you ask her to cook dinner down mit her," he said with a grateful intonation. "She gets so lonesome, my poor Minna, sitting down here, und the doctors say she vill nefer be much better of her pains."

His voice was heavy with the tragedy of elderly married couples sincerely attached to each other, the awful fear of separation by death. I tried to inject into my necessarily perfunctory answer the sincere sympathy I felt.

Madge Makes a Choice

"But doctors are so often mistaken, Mr. Schwartz," I protested. "And while I am here, I promise you she shall not be lonesome any longer."

It was a resolve I had made when I saw the pathetic pleasure the old woman took in the prospect of having my companionship while my dinner was cooking. I had much leisure time even with the care of the tiny apartment, and I meant to spend some of it in the company of my janitor's lonely wife.

"I vish all the peoples were like you," he said simply, and his inflection made the compliment one to treasure in one's memory.

He showed me dutifully through both apartments, but I needed no second glance to confirm what Mrs. Schwartz had told me. The one of which she had spoken favorably was the only one to be considered.

It was much like the apartment Dicky and I occupied, and it shone with the same cleanliness which had been the deciding factor with me when renting our apartment. But looking at its general cheapness of effect, and the atrocious furniture and curtains, I wondered apprehensively what my fastidious sister-in-law would say to my selection. If it were Elizabeth now—I could visualize the lofty contempt with which my other sister-in-law would view both the apartment and me. But Harriet, whom I like as cordially as I dislike her sister, possesses a goodly amount of common sense, and I fervently hoped that she would bring her full complement of the possession with her.

But it was with distinct misgivings that I paid Mr. Schwartz a deposit, and went back upstairs to prepare for my shopping expedition.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a married woman in my teens, with one small child.

I love my husband and I know he loves me. But it seems I can't be happy even with him in this place. I returned last week from a visit to my parents' home, and it seems I am very much dissatisfied. I have lived here three years and they have been three years of misery, as I no longer meet anyone that seems friendly.

My husband says I just imagine it, but I never have any callers, as I would have in my parents' home. The people here are so selfish. I have worried myself sick and lost in weight. What I want to know is should I go to my parents' home as my husband won't leave here, or must I stay and die with a broken heart.

DEAR OLD GOLDEN WEST.

DEAR OLD GOLDEN WEST: People are pretty much the same all over the world, my dear. I am afraid the fault is yours.

If you go half way to meet strangers, they are more than willing to be your friends. Have you entertained at all? Invite the people you meet to your home. Then you are bound to find some congenial friends.

Are you in earnest when you say you would leave your husband to go home to live?

I am afraid you are a little spoiled, my dear. Be more womanly in your thoughts and don't be so selfish. Your heart should not be breaking in your own home with the husband and child whom you love.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been keeping company with a young man for nearly a year and we both are in our early twenties. I am one year his senior. He professes much love for me, but still has never proposed. And I do not think it wise for a young lady to permit too much of her time to be monopolized unless both are planning for the future.

He told an intimate friend of ours that he was very much interested in me and also spoke of marriage, but still, when in my presence, he evades the matter and seems to speak against it. Should I continue to accept his friendship?

I really hold him in the highest esteem. MUCH PERPLEXED.

MUCH PERPLEXED: There is no reason why you should discontinue your friendship with this young man, my dear. You should not, however, refuse the attentions of other young men, but instead have a happy time with them all.

HER PROBLEMS -:- By Annette Bradshaw

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

A Few of the Incidents in Mme. de Campon's Life.

AT the brilliant and extravagant court of Louis XVI. one lovely young girl stood out as a relief from the frivolous and almost universally indolent and pleasure-seeking women who dwelt there. Her name was Jeanne Louise Henriette Genest, and her father was merely a clerk in the foreign office.

But he had high ambitions for his daughter when she was very young and had with a great struggle been successful in educating her far beyond the standards of the girls of her day and station in life.

Jeanne spoke English and Italian fluently. By the time she was fifteen years old she exhibited such a taste for learning and culture that news of her accomplishments were brought to the ears of the queen—Marie Antoinette.

Before her sixteenth birthday, Jeanne was appointed reader to the three daughters of Louis XVI and the quartet spent many happy hours in the magnificent palace and gardens at Versailles, while the clever Jeanne inspired them with an ambition for knowledge.

So attractive was this young woman that she became a general favorite at court and was wooed by many admirers, among them M. de Campon, son of the Secretary of the Royal Cabinet, whom she wed.

The king was pleased with the match—so much so that he voluntarily gave her a liberal annuity as a dowry.

Not only was Jeanne now married to a man of distinguished family—which assured her a position at court—but she was promptly appointed as first lady of the bedchamber to Marie Antoinette.

Together the queen and her faithful attendant dwelt in harmony and mutual devotion until they were separated at the time of the sacking of the Tuileries, when poor Marie Antoinette failed in her attempt to escape from the Terrorists and eventually died on the guillotine.

Fortunately, Madame de Campon survived the Terror. But after the death of her royal patrons she found herself penniless and her husband too ill to attempt any sort of work by which he might support his family.

But Jeanne was not of the disposition or character to be crushed by such misfortune. She assumed the responsibility of providing for herself and family.

She had as a young girl been a successful teacher and to her mind at once came the thought of conducting a school. Her idea was immediately carried out. She established a school at St. Germain.

Hortense Beauharnais, the step-daughter of Napoleon, became interested in Madame de Campon's school and declared herself its patron.

Through this incident, the name of Madame de Campon was brought to the attention of Napoleon, who appointed her superintendent of a school which he founded for the daughters of the members of the Legion of Honor.

This gave Madame de Campon great distinction and prestige, although, because of her own ability as an educator and her former position at court, she was already well known.

It is interesting to know that in this school was established and thoroughly taught the first course in domestic science, although at that date the knowledge of housekeeping did not bear such a dignified name as it does to-day.

All was going beautifully for this splendid woman when Napoleon was dethroned and sent to St. Helena, and she was compelled to retire to the country.

At this very time, Madame de Campon's son died. Because of this grief and the disgrace which was heaped upon her by the adherents of the new regime—the Bourbons—Madame de Campon passed a sorrowful old age, brightened only by the kind attentions of a few life-long friends.

But when Madame de Campon passed away, she was truly mourned. Her life was not only well spent, but highly constructive. For this reason she is regarded as one of the fine characters of her day.

Napoleon's Step-Daughter Became One of Her Pupils.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

How Some Little Things Help Solve Big Problems.

THERE are always so many things needed in the house that it is sometimes hard to decide which we should buy first, but a suggestion often answers the question for us and off we go with a definite object in mind.

Every kitchen needs a good stool. It should be high enough to sit on at the gas stove when stirring things cooking there, to draw up to the sink when washing dishes and for many other uses. A stool recently discovered is a ladder combination which is stout and strong. The legs are so spread that it bears a heavy weight safely, and last but not least among its virtues is that it folds and may be stood behind a door when not otherwise needed. The ladder is high enough to reach the shelves in ordinary closets, to dust pictures or to wash windows. The stool is a little heavy, but not heavy enough to be a serious drawback, while the cost is not as much as a ladder and a stool purchased separately.

Safe is the berry-pie that wears a paper necktie! That necktie keeps the juices from flowing out into the oven. It is made of a strip of good quality manila paper, seven-eighths of an inch wide, and it comes in a roll, perforated every thirty-four inches, and long enough for twenty pies that many inches in circumference.

Each pie length has a gummed end. To use the safeguard, you put all but the gummed end in water for five minutes. When the pie is ready for the oven, you drain the tape and fold it around the edge of the pan, or plate, allowing more than half the width to extend above the rim, draw closely and fasten the gummed end. The tape dries in the oven and becomes tighter so that it forms a perfect guard for the juice.

Sets of jars, to hold the dry stuffs on the kitchen shelves, in pottery, china and tin have long been favored. But glass jars neatly labeled for the same purpose are likely to become leaders, for they have many advantages over the others.

First, we can see what is inside and just how much we have on hand of any one thing.

Second, they wash and polish easily and look neat and nice on the shelves.

Bottles for liquids are part of the set.

Women of a semi-scientific turn of mind and orderly ways of doing their cooking are not slow in learning to appreciate the thermometer family. Perhaps the thermometer for the oven is the most generally in use, because it takes all the guess work from cooking meats or other foods that must be cooked a long time. Easy to understand in its working, not overly expensive, the oven thermometer fills a long-felt need.

The candy thermometer is also a convenience, not only for candy, but for all sugar boiling for frosting, or other uses.

A small jar to hold grease with a soft whisk brush for its application, is needed in all kitchens where up-to-date cookery is practised. Clean fresh grease applied by the brush to potatoes that are to be baked makes them brown evenly, especially if they rest on the little spiked tin sheets that come for the purpose. Many of us use an old can and a rag swab, but the brush and jar are much neater, more convenient and more sanitary, for they may be readily washed.

YOUR HEALTH

What "Growing Pains" May Mean to Your Child

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

CHILDREN are loved by everybody. Nobody in the house can be happy if the baby is sick. A few diseases are monopolized by children. No period of life is immune from one sort of attack or another.

Old age, for example, is noted for its degenerative conditions. The body is beginning to break down and to show evidence of decay. Many serious ailments are of this type.

In childhood the tissues are tender and soft. They must be treated tenderly or suffering follows. In youth there are not the powers of endurance and such resistance to disease as adults possess. The difference in the fibre of the tissues accounts for this.

In childhood any disease having fever as a symptom may have it run very high. In early life an attack, for instance, of indigestion may cause the victim to have convulsions. The excitability of the nervous system of extreme youth accounts for the violence of the signs of disease.

There are some diseases, however, where the symptoms are much less pronounced in infancy than they are in old age. One is rheumatism.

You probably regard rheumatism as essentially a trouble confined to advanced life. Unfortunately this is not the case. However, this condition is entirely different in childhood from what it is in adults.

In grown-ups the symptoms of acute rheumatism are apt to be very severe. The attack comes on with great suddenness. There is very high fever, possibly with delirium, and profuse perspiration, together with swollen joints.

On the contrary, a child with rheumatism may give almost no sign of the attack. The fever will be low, perhaps 100 or a very little more. He may complain of pain in a few joints, but there is no visible sign of the inflammation observed in adults.

The child may complain of pains here and there, and it is common, indeed, for the parent to describe these as "growing pains." The little boy may put on his father's rubber boots and drag the heavy things around the block. His knees hurt and you say he has "strained" them, or else that he has "growing pains."

It is more than likely the little chap has rheumatism. Careful examination of the joints and the taking of the temperature may confirm this suspicion.

In more severe cases the child refuses to use the joint affected. He won't walk, or bend the arm, or otherwise use the involved part.

All such symptoms should be given attention. It is not natural or proper for a child to have pain of any kind. "Growing pains" may be a term sufficient to satisfy the poorly-informed. But "growing" pains or any other pains should be attended to at once.

In the first place, you don't want the child to suffer, but even more important than to give him comfort, is to find the cause of the rheumatism or other condition. If it is due to an infection of some sort, the safety and health of the child are in danger.

You must find why he is suffering and have the cause removed.

You must not dismiss "growing pains," or obstinate pains of any sort in a growing child.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes an Evening Gown with a Novel Skirt Treatment.

MADAME has been very busy designing evening gowns for the Fall season in town.

"I love making frocks for these sun-browned young girls who are back from their Summer at the ocean or in the mountains," she confided to me.

"Those who have been in this morning look as healthy as young Indians," I replied.

"Why, pale tints won't do for them at all," Madame said. "They need oranges and deep blues and colors that won't seem too pale and faded when compared with their own vivid coloring."

"There was only one frock to be tried this morning that wasn't a bright Fall color," Madame continued. "That was for Miss Brown."

"Where has she been that she has preserved the delicate creaminess of her skin?" I asked. "It doesn't seem a tint deeper than it was last Winter."

"It never does," Madame answered. "That girl has the loveliest complexion I've ever seen, and it seems to be unaffected by the elements."

"I've noticed that when every one else looks browned or freckled or generally marred by the weather, she is as delicately lovely as ever," I answered.

"Wait until you see her in this exquisite blue taffeta I've designed for her. I promise you a treat," Madame said.

"Miss Brown's creamy skin is lovely in light blue," I remarked. "I presume the taffeta is light blue?"

"With touches of dark," Madame told me.

"Could I have a peep at it?" I asked.

"More than that," Madame said with a smile. "Miss Brown is just about your size and I want you to put it on while I arrange the velvet ribbon at the front. I'm very proud of this frock and don't want to trust it to anyone else."

The pale blue taffeta was made with a slim, straight bodice, and a [illegible] velvet ribbon stood up over the shoulders. From the edge of the neckline long streamers dropped down to the floor.

"I want to arrange those streamers according to a plan of my own," Madame said.

She let them drop straight to the girdle, where she caught them with a spray of pastel flowers. The blue velvet girdle extended away to either side, arranged in a series of little loops all across the front.

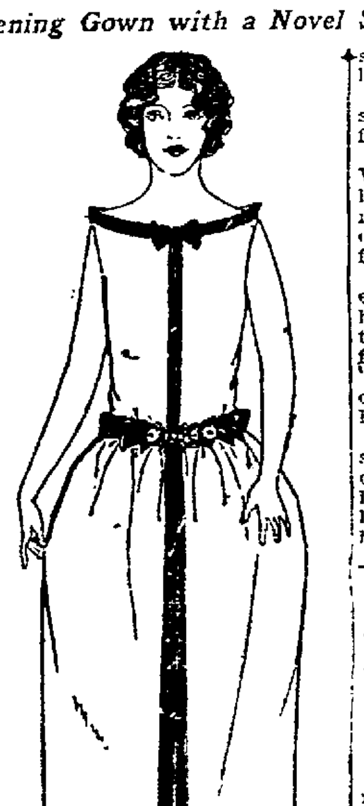

"Now I'm going to let these streamers come straight down the front to the hem," Madame said.

She suited the action to the word. When the streamers reached the hem, she caught them up beneath it, so that the hem of the frock came up in a little dip at the center-front.

I pirouetted before the mirror long enough to see that the dip in the hem gave an expression to the frock that was altogether chic and youthful.

"Miss Brown will love it!" Madame exclaimed, well-pleased with her handiwork.

"I have a great mind to do this same frock in yellow taffeta, with orange velvet ribbon and Autumn leaves. I know Miss Luke would like it," Madame said. "I promised her something effective."

The Blue of This Taffeta Evening Gown Is Effectively Brought Out by the Trimming of Darker Blue Velvet Ribbon.

Schedule Mix-Up Brings Together Conference Title Winners

MIDLAND CHAMPIONS TO PLAY WESLEYAN

Conflict on Wayne's Schedule Causes Coach Speer to Cancel With Bulldogs and Take on Methodists.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 4.—Because of a conflict on Wayne college's football schedule, Midland has eliminated the Bull-dogs from its late this year. In place of Wayne coming to Fremont October 12, Dean W. E. Tilberg announced today. Midland will clash with Wesleyan at University Place on that date.

Wesleyan captured the conference championship in 1921 and Midland succeeded the Methodists on the throne in 1922. Midland and Wesleyan have not met on the gridiron during the past two seasons, altho Midland met and defeated every team in the conference last season, with one exception. The game with Grand Island college ended in a tie.

There was some doubt in the minds of many of the fans last season whether Midland could rightfully claim the championship without first playing a deciding contest with Wesleyan. The teams are practically the same this year and a real conflict should result when they clash at University Place next week.

Altho his proteges held the strong Creighton university eleven to two touchdowns, Coach Speer is by no means satisfied with the showing made by the Midland warriors. The end positions, vacated by last year's graduations, are still the source of trouble. The return of Cunningham, Wahoo high school star, who has been out of the game with an injured foot may help to partially solve this problem. Other moves are being made to strengthen the team in an attempt to get ready for the struggle with Wesleyan.

Midwest Grid Briefs.

Lineman Drill On Timing

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Linemen were drilled in proper timing of the Maroon shift to remedy the cause of many offside penalties in the M. A. C. game. Several shifts were made in the backfield by Coach Stagg.

Grizzly Bear Joins Purple

EVANSTON, Oct. 4.—A half grown grizzly bear mascot was addeod to the Purple eleven's equipment yesterday. The Northwestern coaches are undecided whether to use him for scrimmage against the linemen or as a side line artist.

Irish Work Hard For Lombard

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 4.—With the threat of the Army game becoming stronger each day, Notre Dame was put thru one of the longest practices of the year by Coach Rockne. The Lombard game Saturday is expected to prove a real test for the Army goat getters.

Injuries Send Cox to Bench

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. Oct. 4.—Injuries continue to hang on the trail of the Minnesota eleven. Cox, tackle, was sent to the showers yesterday with a dislocated knee. Already most of the stars are sitting on the bench.

Frost Score On Perdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct.4.—Varsity attacking power proved weak in the scrimmage yesterday and few gains were made against the Perdue initial year men. The youngsters scored one touchdown.

Too Smart For Yearlings

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 4.—Outsmarting the yearling eleven, Indiana's regulars had little difficulty in guessing the Depauw plays used against them in scrimmage yesterday.

Ineligibles Scare Badger Coaches

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 4.—Wisconsin's quota of ineligibles was able to make ground thru the varsity with a regularity that caused Badger coaches to try new combinations.

Iowa First String Picked

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 4.—With the regular eleven picked for the season, Coach Jones brought his freshman and varsity teams together for a long scrimmage yesterday.

Injuries Threaten Beloit Team

BELOIT, Wis., Oct. 4.—Injuries to linemen threaten to weaken the frontal attack of the Beloit college eleven when they swing out against Northwestern Saturday.

Michigan Ragged Against Frosh

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 4.—With the opening game three days away, Coach Yost labored with his team to develop ends and guards to fill vacancies made by graduation. The team was ragged in scrimmage against the freshmen.

Rabbit Backfield; Heavy Line

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—A rabbit backfield behind a line of immense proportions will be Coach Wilce's combination this season. The shock-absorbing line showed good drive in scrimmage last night.

Injuries Prevent Heavy Work

Marquette Captain Is Shifted.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 4.—Captain "Red" Dunn of the Marquette university football team, will most likely lead the Hilltoppers from a halfback position instead of quarter, because of a shift being made necessary, due to so many halfbacks being out on account of injuries.

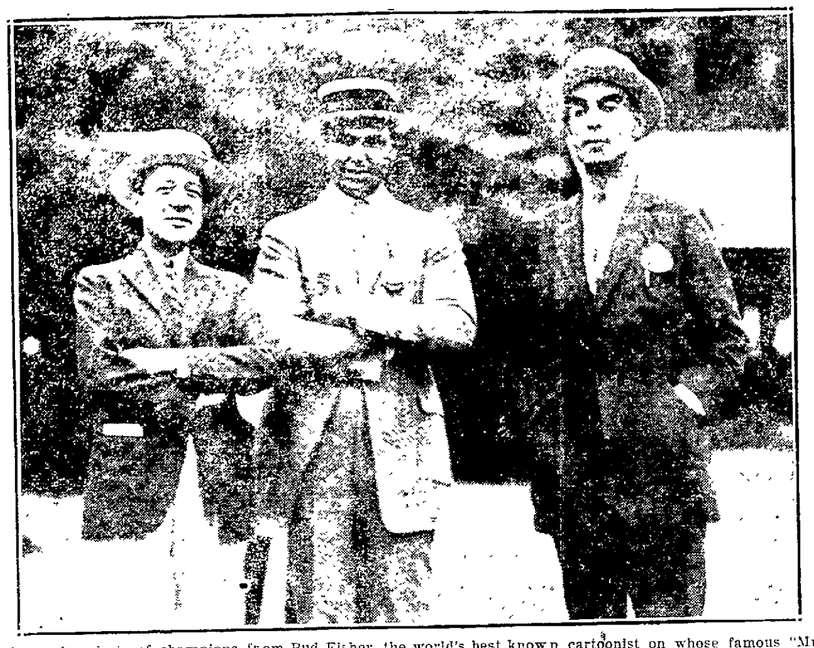

Race Drivers Are Getting Set.

FRANKLIN, Neb., Oct. 4 — Race drivers are "tuning up" here now for the race to be held over the Franklin speedway association's track. Among Platte of 1922 Pike's peak fame and winner of many dirt track races, the Reynolds team, Harley Wells and H. L. Cox of St. Joseph, Mo., and "Dad" Harrier of Hiawatha, Kas. Recent rains and plenty of work has put the track in good condition and the track record of 48 2-5 seconds will probably be lowered.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

Kansas City 11, Columbus 6.
Milwaukee 12-11, Toledo 8-1.
St. Paul 4, Indianapolis 2.

THREE CH AMPIONS

Here's a triumvirate of champions from Bud Fisher, the world's best known cartoonist on whose famous "Mutt and Jeff" pictures the sun never sets; Jack Dempsey, long king of the he avyweights, and Ring Lardner, who takes regular falls out of the English language.

Despite Reported Injuries Odds Favor Yankees 6 to 5 At Present

Huggins Claims He'll Have Ruth, Pipp and Meusel in Their Regular Places When World's Series Opens October 10.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Despite the various infirmities that have befallen the Yankees and the improvement that has been noted in the Giant pitching the American league champions are still being held as 6 to 5 favorites to win the world's series.

Several large bets have been reported by commissioners and brokers in the financial district, and increasing interest in the series has been indicated by stimulated wagering.

Huggins Is Not Worried.

While many of his supporters are prepared to weep for him because he may have to work without Babe Ruth, Wally Pipp or Bob Meusel, or all of them, Miller Huggins, the little manager of the Yankees, is not showing any surface indications of being perturbed.

"The injuries of Ruth, Pipp and Meusel are greatly exaggerated and I expect to have them occupying their regular positions when the series gets under way next week," Huggins said today.

Babe Ruth hit one over the grand stand in the Polo grounds yesterday and wasn't working with his full swing. That means a lot, Huggins said.

The principal argument offered by Giant supporters is that the National league champions will start with a mental jump on the Yankees. They figure that the two defeats suffered by the Yankees in the last two series will have the same effect as that worked upon a boxer by a knockout.

Cite Law of Averages.

Neutrals believe the law of averages and the breaks should favor the Yankees this year, while the American league fans lean toward the Yankees because of their superior pitching staff and their more powerful offense.

ILLINI GO THRU THE HUSKER FORMATIONS

Zuppke's Regulars Break Up Nebraska's Plays When Illinois Freshmen Attempt to Frame Attack in Scrimmage.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 4.—Zuppke's University of Illinois regulars romped over the yearlings Wednesday and showed the best football of the season. The yearlings used the Cornhusker plays but were unable to go much against the varsity. Coach Zuppke will work his proteges hard again Thursday afternoon and then give them a light workout Friday as preparation for the clash with Nebraska Saturday. From present indications the Illinois lineup will probably be Hall and Brown, tackles; Robertson, center; Capt. and Robinson, ends; Captain McMillen and Miller, guards; Hall at quarter; Grange and McIlwain at halves, and Pr. or as full.

HARTINGTON PROSPECTS GOOD

Plan to Develop a Winning Football Aggregation.

HARTINGTON, Neb., Oct. 3.—Hartington high school football prospects are bright. The local gridsters went thru the season undefeated in 1921 and filled a bid for state championship honors. The title was passed to North Platte and Hartington was given honorable mention. This year with E. L. Craig, a former Peru normal man, coaching a squad of thirty-five candidates, prospects are favorable for another winning aggregation. The schedule:

'VARSITY GOES GOOD AGAINST YEARLINGS

BY JOHN BENTLEY.

Twenty four Cornhuskers entrain Thursday afternoon for Urbana, and the opening game of the season Saturday, with Illinois. The last intensive workout was held Wednesday afternoon. The 'varsity showed to better advantage than at any previous time.

The first stringers neutralized the Illinois shift as emulated by the freshmen and when given the ball the 'varsity smashed thru the line and also passed the yearlings to death. They were playing heads-up football.

In the first string were McAllister and Rhodes at end; Weir and Bassett at tackle; Ogden and Berquist at guard, Hutchison at center; Captain Lewellen at quarter; Noble and H. Dewitz at halfback and Sed Hartman at fullback.

Will Probably Start Game.

This is the combination which has been working together since Monday and it is probably the one which will line up for the opening kickoff against Illinois.

The word that Coach Zuppke was drilling his men offensively on a shift fashioned after the old and original Minnesota movement, set the Husker mentors off on a campaign to defend against it.

And Line Coach Henry Schulte believes he has the formation to do it. It is this formation which the 'varsity has been drilled on all week.

"This formation isn't an experiment nor is it original with me. I used it several years ago and at that time it was not a new idea. I contend it will counteract an offensive team using a shift play," Coach Schulte said.

To Use Old Field.

The Nebraska game is drawing one of the biggest crowds Illinois ever entertained at an opening game, according to reports from Urbana. The old field will be used and not the new stadium. Walter Eckersall will referee.

The Nebraska student body is planning a big rally with which to give the Huskers the proper send-off. They pull away from the Burlington depot at 4:40 p. m. However, Coach Dawson is not letting that ruin the entire afternoon for practice. He will put the Huskers thru a stiff hour's workout between 2 and 3.

In the list of twenty-four chosen to make the trip, Roland Locke is named, but he injured his knee in scrimmage Wednesday, just before the practice closed, and his going depends upon its condition. The twenty-four who will make the trip:

Ends: McAllister, Robertson, Collins and Rhodes.

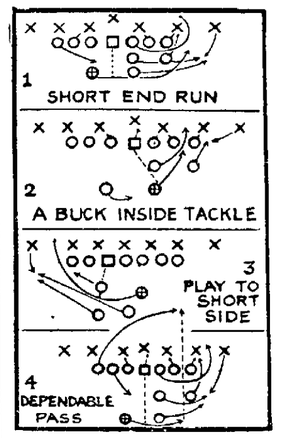

Centers: Hutchison, Wostoupal and Rorby.

Guards: McGlasson, Berquist, Ogden and Halbersleben.

Tackles: Bassett, Hill, Weir, Hendrickson.

Backfield: Captain Lewellen, R. Dewitz, Noble, Locke, Gately, Hartman, Randolph, H. Dewitz and Bloodgood.

LITTLE LESSONS IN FOOTBALL

What are the fundamental basic plays that every football team should have?

Answered by

J. W. HEISMAN.

Coach of football Washington and Jefferson university. Former coach, University of Pennsylvania. The 1917 Georgia Tech. team, which he coached, was unanimously chosen as the best team in the country.

A few well known coaches believe that a strong drive thru every hole from inside of tackle to inside of tackle is essential—and little else, save a good punting game. But most western, southern and Pennsylvania teams believe the following to be basic and fundamental: 1. A strong, short end run outside opposing tackle: 2. A smashing buck inside the tackle; 3. A powerful rushing play to the short side (unbalanced line); 4. At least one dependable forward pass; 5. A good punt. Next in drive thru opposing center, another good forward pass or two and, from punt formation, an end run, a buck, and several forward passes.

LINCOLN SHOWS UP WELL IN PRACTICE

BY CHARLES MASSEY.

With the opening game of the home season but three days distant, Coach W. H. Browne is putting the Lincoln high school football squad thru some of the stiffest workouts yet given to the Red and Black warriors. Every effort is being exerted to tie up a victory Saturday over Kearney, runners-up for the state title last year, in the battle which will be the first played in the new high school stadium.

Brown Makes Gain.

The second team gained the ball on a fumble once and was held for downs when the regulars' defensive proved too strong. On another attempt to gain headway, the second team failed and finally resorted to punting. "Jug" Brown did a neat piece of broken field running and returned the ball about sixty yards.

Forward passes were successfully attempted, only one during the scrimmage being incomplete. Stan Lewis and Corrick repeatedly broke thru the line for long gains.

Coach Browne altered the lineup and sent in Wagner for Curtin, Jones for Corrick, Corrick for Lewis, Teel for Brown, and Good for Ward. This combination played evenly against the second team, neither eleven breaking thru for much yardage. The regulars were sent back in and the first team again began to make headway.

Cook Sprains Ankle.

Cook, who has been playing center on the first team, sprained his ankle early in the scrimmage and was replaced by Foss. Cook's injury may keep him out of the game for a week. Foss performed creditably at the pivot position.

Kipp, 160 pound tackle on the second team, showed up well in the scrimmage. Black, quarter; Benbrook, a halfback; and Linder, 170 pound guard, were making good showings against the regulars.

The Red and Black squad will be put thru a secret practice Friday. This will be the last workout of the team before the battle with the Buffalo county eleven.

JOURNAL FOOTBALL PARTY.

Play-by-play report of the Nebraska-Illinois game at Urbana Saturday will be megaphoned from the P street side of the Journal building. Everybody is invited to attend the Journal's football party. The game starts at Urbana at 3 p. m.

MOSLEMS PLAN REVOLT

WANT FOREIGN INVADERS OUSTED FROM TERRITORY.

Leader of Senussi Declares Tribe Will Not Rest Until Italy Has Left Soil of Tripoli.

[illegible]

By Edward Bing

ANGORA, Oct. 4.—The Senussi will not [illegible] until the last Italian [illegible] the soil of Tripoli."

This [illegible] Sheik Sidi Mohamed Idriss El Senussi, leader of the Senussi brotherhood.

In the first interview ever granted by this distinguished and dramatic leader of a strange, mystic brotherhood, whose followers stretch from the western hill of Morocco to the desert banks of the Red sea the grand sheik of the Senussi told of the grim war that is being fought to drive the European invaders from the African shores.

"We are determined to follow the Turkish example," he declared.

The Moslem world will oust the foreign invaders everywhere

Backing New Caliph

The Senussi and all Moslems are solidly backing the new caliph, Abdul Medjid.

In reply to the recent suggestion recommending King Hussein of the Hedjaz for the caliphate, I declare that Hussein, altho he is a direct descendant of the prophet's family, has committed acts unworthy of any incompatible with his position as the prophet's descendant.

"Except perhaps for a few of Hussein's personal followers, all Moslems recognize the caliphate of Constantinople, as long as it is held by the Osman family.

"However, should the exiled ex-sultan try to claim the caliphate, he will not find any followers.

"All Islam backs the new caliph and the Turkish nationalist movement.

"I believe that the abolition of the temporal power of the caliphate has raised the latter's moral position thru the world of Islam, for now that the caliphate is not associated with any particular nation (as the old caliphate was a joint office with that of the sultan of Turkey) it has become the spiritual property of all Moslems.

"I believe that I speak for all the Senussi—that is, my followers—who number many millions, forming almost half the population of Morocco, a third of the population of Algiers, half of Tunis, the entire population of Tripoli, the Benghazi, comprising the western tribes of Egypt, and part of the population of the Hedjaz Yemen, numbering 3,000,000 people in the West Soudan alone.

"I voice the sentiments of all Moslems when I say that we admit that good working methods, but that eastern technique, especially Moslem traditions, spirit, culture and morals, must remain untouched.

"If we lost them we would lose much more than we might gain by adopting the methods of the western world."

The indictments are expected to be returned in court tomorrow.

Lee and Brunner were named by many witnesses as agents for Daniel Nugent, New York attorney for Stokes.

A resolution urging this sanction is now before the organization committee of the federation, in annual convention here. AUTHORIZED TO OPERATE BUS.

DES MOINES, Oct. 4.—Authorization to operate a motor bus line between Sidney, Ia., and Omaha, was granted W. D. Cross, Sidney, by the state board of railroad commissioners today over the protests of the Iowa Transit company.

Cross presented affidavits to show he was operating his bus line in good faith on April 14, the day the Iowa motor bus law went into effect.

On the strength of that evidence, the commission declared it had no other alternative under the law than to grant the certificate.

Art C. Ferguson, Shenandoah, Ia., attorney, represented the transit company at the recent hearing in Council Bluffs, Ia.

Olean, N. Y. — "Every month my blood would go to my head and I would have such a headache, nosebleed, backache and pains that I could not do my work. At night I could not get my rest and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read some of your testimonials about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, so I decided to try it. I had only taken two bottles when I began to be better, and my back did not hurt me nor my head ache. I felt like a new woman. The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine and I will always recommend it."—Mrs. A. D. EARLS, 630 N. 5th St., Olean, N. Y.

Mrs. Kelsey adds her Testimony

I am willing for you to publish this letter if you think it will help others."—Mrs. HERBERT KELSEY, R.F.D., Copenhagen, N.Y.

HER HEAD OR HER HEART

Will She Marry the Man She Loves or the One Who Offers Life's Comforts in Abundance?

BY FAY STEVENSON.

Unlooked For Aid.

When Anne reached her own room her brain was awhirl. She felt certain that Erwin had played with the affections of the girl who was now suing him for breach of promise. She knew she should turn her back to him forever. She even felt that it would be wise for her to return to Binghamton and reconsider Dr. Carr's offer of marriage.

But she had promised Erwin Taylor faithfully that she would stand by him!

Anne sat with her hands to her face in a dejected attitude. She was fighting that old battle over again, that struggle between her head and her heart.

There was a gentle knock at her door.

She peeked ou tto face an exceptionally pretty girl with reddish hair and deep blue eyes.

"Would you mind if I came in and talked with you? I'm so lonely!"

Anne did mind. She wanted to puzzle things out for herself. This wistful pretty creature before her was only a girl of seventeen or eighteen.

"You seem to be in trouble," the girl surmised, "well, so am I. Perhaps we can help each other." She had taken a seat and sat rocking to and fro.

"I was just trying to think about something which concerns my life," admitted Anne. "But tell me about your trouble. It may lighten my burden."

"Well, I just came to the city, Mother brought me here," began the girl. "I'm eighteen and I do not want to marry, but mother wants me to and is making me sue a man for breach of promise."

"What is his name?" asked Anne with trembling lips.

"Erwin Taylor. Isn't Erwin a perfectly hideous name?"

Anne gave a funny little "Oh,' and then suppressed her emotions. 'Tell me something else about this man. His name is rather fascinating. What else don't you like about him?"

The girl began to rock again, kicking the toe of her pump into the rug each time she swayed toward Anne. "Well, I don't like him because he is frivolous," she began. "He makes love to you one day and is different the next. He used to joke about matrimony and I knew he was not serious but mother took him up. I think mother wants to get married again herself and she wants to get me settled in life."

"Then you don't really think this Erwin Taylor wanted to make you his wife or that he ever meant what he said when he made love to you?" asked Anne suddenly realizing that she could use this girl's conversation in helping Erwin win his suit. She could be a star witness for him and tell how the girl admitted it was her mother who urged her on.

"Of course he didn't mean it," admitted the girl, falling into Anne's marry me and it will never come to court."

"Don't worry about that," said Anne suddenly dismissing the girl because she wanted to tell Erwin of her good fortune. "You just tell the truth on the stand, tell the judge that you know the young man was not serious when he made love to you."

"Oh, I can't do that before mother," said the girl. "I've been coached to say I'm broken hearted!"

Anne got her to her own room and then thought, "Much good your testimony will do young lady when I go on the stand for Erwin!"

BRUSSELS.—(By Mail)—Brussels today has replaced Berlin as the cheapest city in Europe and the traveling bargain-seeker overwhelms the storekeepers and overfills the big hotels of the city. Is your motor headed for the junkpile?

poor lubrication is the shortest road.

AUTOMOTIVE engineers and automobile repair men know that poor lubrication hurries more motors to the junk pile than all other causes combined.

Your motor may be headed in that direction, even though you keep oil at the proper level. It is not the amount of oil but the kind of oil that counts. If the oil you use breaks down and runs thin just as soon as the motor gets warmed up, every moving part is subject to extra strains, vibration and wear.

Polarine will guard against these dangers, it will keep a motor like new for years and save a lot of preventable expenses that you will surely face if you get the bad habit of asking for a "quart of oil" instead of a "quart of Polarine."

Polarine has stood the test of service for many years. It is made in one unsurpassed quality, in five grades—light, medium, heavy, special heavy and extra heavy—a grade to meet the lubrication needs of every type of motor. Ask for Polarine by name and be sure you get what you ask for. Sold where you see this sign.

Land Commissioner Swanson has received notice from the city council of Norfolk that the council of that city has accepted the offer of the board of educational lands and funds to buy paving bonds issued by that city. The total issue will amount to about $100,000. The state board buys bonds at par. They bear 5 per cent interest. About $10,000 of intersection paving bonds are to be taken by the state immediately, but the district paving bonds will not be delivered until after January 1.

City Commissioner Cowgill speaking of the reluctance of the Lincoln Gas and Electric Light company to install new poles on the west side of Ninth street from P to S streets because of short funds, said that inasmuch as property owners are spending over $5,000 for paving and lights in that territory the company can surely afford to make the change. He figured it out that as the poles have been in the ground twenty-three years and that the life of a pole is twenty-eight years it will only cost it $107 to remove them now and put in new ones. This estimate is based on the statement of the company that it would cost $600 for new poles. Assuming that they must be replaced in five years the $107 represents the actual increased cost of removing them now.

Br. B. F. Bailey has returned from Carmel, Calif., where he has been spending several weeks. He found California booming agriculturally, and realty values very high. The Berkeley fire was more destructive than can be realized without viewing the scene, the doctor says, sixty blocks having burned so completely that even the soot was consumed and the ground left white with ashes. Cooperative marketing has done a great deal for the fruit grower, and the ranches are operated by a well educated and cultivated people. "I want to say again that one has to read the coast papers in order to appreciate the middle western press," Dr. Bailey said. "With the exception of the little Berkeley Gazette, I didn't find a paper carrying anything but California news. I had to wait for the Lincoln papers to find out what was going on in the world."

SUE FOR $12,600 DAMAGES

Wright-Eastman Company Charges Korsmeyer Concern Unfair in Eliminating Competition.

Frank L. Wright and Karl S. Eastman, former proprietors of an electrical supply shop at 1614 N street, filed suit in the district court Thursday morning for $12,600 damages against the Korsmeyer company, a wholesale firm dealing in similar goods, for injury they allege they sustained thru representations of the defendant.

The Wright Eastman company alleges in its petition that they were approached by the Korsmeyer company who induced them to sign an agreement to sell out their electrical goods by a special sale, with the understanding that they would move to another location provided by the Korsmeyer people and would handle only such goods as were available thru the Korsmeyer concern.

It is stated that both Mr. Wright and Mr. Eastman were former employes of the Korsmeyer people and that the two concerns were on the best of terms both in a personal and a business way, and that the plaintiffs thought the defendants were acting in good faith with a view of establishing a business profitable to both concerns.

The plaintiffs allege that they went ahead and sold out their stock at a reduced sale price and packed their fixtures preparatory to moving to the new location, before they discovered that they had suffered at the hands of their erstwhile employers.

They allege that the supposed arrangement was merely an artifice pany was eliminated and that the Korsmeyer company had no intention of carrying out such an agreement but suggested the proposition with the sole purpose of putting them out of business.

TO FURNISH HOSPITAL ROOM

Daughters of Israel to Equip It at Expense of Six Hundred Dollars.

The Daughters of Israel, an auxiliary of the Tifereth Israel congregation, has selected room 221 at the general hospital and it will be furnished with all the equipment at a cost of six hundred dollars by the auxiliary. This was made possible thru the untiring efforts of Mrs. Sarah Greenstone of 725 South Tenth who conceived and carried out the plan of taxing each member five dollars and twenty cents a year and collected from many at the rate of ten cents a week, walking to the farthest corners of the city, giving many of the poorer people an opportunity to participate in this gift to the general hospital. A member of the congregation says of Mrs. Greenstone "She is a pioneer figure of the city, always trying in her quiet and unpretentious way, to relieve suffering and give aid wherever needed. Mrs. Greenstone was one of the hardest and best workers during the war, sending baskets and packages in all directions, always dispensing cheer and giving her best to help the soldiers, going to homes and helping families during the flu epidemic. Many good wishes from prisoners, soldiers and others have found their way to Mrs. Greenstone but nothing is better fitted to be a monument for her work than the furnishing of the room for which the check was given a few days ago."

ROAD CLAIMS NEXT ON LIST

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR REQUEST FOR MANDAMUS.

Contractors Say State Spent Appropriations for Old Debts and Cannot Now Refuse Payment for Work Done.

The supreme court will hear arguments Friday on the case brought in that tribunal by the Western Bridge & Construction company against Auditor Marsh, which is to determine whether the road contractors can get their claims allowed and warrants issued for the $450,000 worth of work done during the last biennium for which payment has not been made.

The auditor declined to issue a warrant because there is no money in the road fund for the past biennium, and holding that the appropriations for the current one are not available. The contractors insist that the state would have had sufficient money if it had not taken funds from the appropriations for the biennium ending last July to pay bills contracted and work done in the previous biennium.

The matter has been aired freely in the newspapers, and one of the contentions is that the state highway system is being constructed just as is the state capitol, under a continuing contract, and that this permits the indiscriminate use of funds so long as the total is kept within the appropriation. The capitol fund has been carrying a big total for several years, and most of the balance there now which is being drawn upon was paid in last biennium.

The state has insisted that the only redress for the contractors is to wait until the next legislature meets, and then ask that body to allow deficiency claims. The contractors say that the only trouble with that scheme, besides making them wait for money they need in their business, is that the claims are not for deficiencies, and that as matter of fact there was enough money appropriated to pay them if the state had not used it as stated. They say the state cannot thus use funds and then put up as a defense that the biennial funds are exhausted.

poison liquor since January 1, but believed the total "undoubtedly is much greater."

New Orleans reported only one death, while Dallas, Tex., gave the same low figure.

Coroner Clift in Des Moines said there had been fifteen to twenty deaths in that city since January 1 "in which liquor, good or bad, was a contributing factor."

In Detroit, Coroner James E. Burgess said three persons were known to have died from drinking poison liquor since January 1 while ninety-five other deaths were classed as caused by acute alcoholism.

The state board of health of Indiana reported forty-two deaths since January 1 from alcoholism, making no distinction between so-called "poison booze" and any other kind.

Nebraska reported fourteen dead from drinking poison liquor. North Dakota had three, Kansas ten, including one woman; Iowa, twenty-six for the state; Oklahoma, twenty, and Ohio fourteen.

R. M. Olin, state health commissioner of Michigan, estimated seventy-five persons had died in that state since January 1 outside of Detroit, from "alcoholism."

In San Francisco the coroner reported that up to September 1 three persons died from drinking poison liquor, one from Jamaica ginger, one from wood alcohol, one from denatured alcohol, six from accidents sustained while intoxicated and sixteen from natural causes while under the influence of alcohol. Six persons committed suicide from acute alcoholism.

GAS COMPANY WANTS MILFORD ENJOINED

Goes to Court to Keep Village From Getting Electric Service From Blue River Power Company.

The Nebraska Gas and Electric company brought suit in federal of Milford and the Blue River Power company, seeking an injunction and charging unlawful conspiracy and breach of contract. A temporary restraining order is asked, pending litigation, to keep the village from changing over to the Blue River company for its current.

The petition recites the history of its contract with Milford, and of the erection of a power plant and generator last year at an approximate cost of $50,000. Under a contract signed December 15, 1922, the company had been supplying light and power to the village, and had never heard any complaint regarding its service, it is said. Nevertheless the Blue River company advised the village council that its contract with the gas company was not legally binding, it is charged and conspired to have it broken.

On September 5 the city council adopted a resolution calling for bilds on electric service and annuling its contract with the gas company. Notice to this effect was published in the Milford Review on September 27, it is said, as part of the alleged conspiracy. The council expects to sign a contract with the Blue River company the evening of October 8, it is said, and immediately make connection with the power company's lines. Such action will materially damage the gas company, it claims, in an amount not calculable during the life of the contract, and it asks the court to stop the procedings until the matter of the contract can be litigated.

GOVERNOR COMMENTS ON BANK DECISION

Compliments Attorney General Spillman and Supreme Court on Result of Holdrege Bank Litigation.

Governor Bryan said Thursday he considered the decision of the supreme court in the Holdrege bank case one of the most important judicial decisions rendered for a long time in Nebraska. The court reversed the judgment of W. A. Dilworth of the district court and held that the Citizens' State bank was not entitled to draw $187,000 from the bank guaranty fund. The state department of trade and commerce had been directed by the district judge to pay the amount from the guaranty fund.

"As head of that department," said Governor Bryan, "I directed the secretary of the department not to pay the money. I considered the people who tried that case to be disqualified from trying it, including the attorneys on both sides, and I so stated in a letter last winter. The bank whose deposits had been taken over by the Citizens' State bank, had been closed nearly two years. The attorney general then in office was acting in that matter in a triple capacity. I always contended that the people who claimed that money from the guaranty fund had no more right to it than people living in another state or farmers at home who might find themselves needing money.

"I am much gratified over the decision of the court and I desire to compliment Attorney General Spillman on the success of his presentation of the case and helping to uphold the bank guaranty law. The decision will also strengthen the supreme court of Nebraska in the confidence of the public. There were many conflicting personal and political elements in the case."

Dr. Eugene von Knilling has resigned as premier of Bavaria.

CAR SPEEDS IN QUESTION

SUPREME COURT HEARS DEBATE ON RELATIVE LIABILITY.

Automobile Driver Badly Hurt When He Presumed Street Car Approaching Him Would Slow Down a Bit.

The supreme court is to decide whether the driver of an automobile, in approaching the crossing of a street car railroad, is justified in assuming that the car when it reaches the crossing will be operated at its ordinary and usual speed, and whether, if it happens that it is going a lot faster, the driver can recover damages when hit, or be denied relief on the ground of negligence.

The matter was argued and submitted Thursday in supreme court. Harley J. Davoll, a garage foreman who said he was earning $256 a month when a traction company car hit him at Twenty-second and O streets on the 5th of December, 1920, sued for $60,300 damages, alleging that a car operated at 45 miles an hour struck his car and threw him out, fracutring his skull, breaking three ribs and permanently incapacitating him. He secured a judgment for $5,000. From this the traction company appealed.

The street car, according to witnesses, had come down the hill at a very fast rate. Davoll said he saw it coming and noted its speed, but he had not reason to believe that the motorman was not watching the track ahead and would not slacken speed. He turned to cross, when the car, which had not lessened its speed, hit the rear of his Ford coupe and spilled him. He brought forward witnesses who said that the motorman was talking to a passenger on the platform and was not looking ahead. The motorman denied this.

The company is fighting the case very strenuously, to establish the legal principle that a motorman is not required by law to figure that auto drivers will be careless and to govern himself accordingly. Its attorneys insisted that the accident was caused by Davoll miscalculating the time he had to get across, and submitted a number of mathematical calculations, based on how many feet a second a car will cover going at various rates of speed, to buttress this theory. They said Davoll was crossing midway between intersections to get to a filling station.

STATE GIVES DAY OF GRACE

Land Commissioner Swanson Gives Delinquent Lease Holders Ninety Days Additional Time.

State Land Commissioner Dan Swanson is now sending notices to delinquent holders of leases on state lands that they must pay up by January 1, or their leases will be declared forfeited and the lands advertised for releasing. The law gives delinquents ninety days in which to produce the necessary money to square themselves with the state. Commissioner Swanson delayed the sending of delinquent notices for the purpose of accomodating beet growers, cattle men and potato growers who hold leases on state land but who had little or no income during the summer. In the past it has been customary for the land commissioner to notify delinquents July 1 that they must pay by September 30. Beetgrowers, and potato growers are now digging their crops and will be able to pay the state the interest on their leases. Grass fed cattle do not usually go upon the market until October. Commissioner Swanson believes he will get better settlement and at the same time save th state the cost of advertising leases for sale at public auction.

LEGION COMMANDER WARNS OF RADICALS

Says Communists Well Organized and Beginning to Influence Young People—Would Check Immigration.

"On eof the Lincoln papers recently carried an editorial denying the existence of a strong communist organization," said Prof. Charles W. Taylor, newly elected department commander of the American Legion, addressing the Lions club Thursday noon at the chamber of commerce. "That is a mistake. I have in my office many proofs of the existence of this organization and many of its publications. The outlawed I. W. W. is very active, particularly in regions where the labor situation is acute. It is not acute in this state, but in Omaha I gained admittance to an I. W. W. meeting where speeches were made, well calculated to incite laboring people against the government.

"And that is not all. There is now a young communist organization, aimed at enrolling boys and girls ten to sixteen years old. It is flooding the schools of Chicago and New York with literature. The communists have a double organization, one as nearly legal as they can make it, the other illegal, and they are waiting for 'the day' when they can shift organizations.

"The American Legion is against radicalism because it attacks, not only our political government but also the American home. For the same reason the Legion favors restricted immigration, in order that education and the instilling of American ideals may have a chance to catch up with the flood of foreign born population.

"I'm not an alarmist, nor a pessimist, and do not wish to be quoted as such. I am confident that enlightened public opinion can take care of the problems I have cited. The important thing now is to put the people in possession of the facts."

It was announced that the Lions would give the visiting Kiwanis ladies a tour over the Lincoln trail Saturday morning, October 13, as a contribution to the entertainment of the district convention.

TO OPEN LINE ON SATURDAY

FLOOD DAMAGE REPAIR AT ARVADA NEARLY DONE.

Burlington to Resume Service on Old Line to Billings After Day and Night Work.

The Burlington hopes to have its Arvada bridge crossing the Powder river in shape for trains to cross by Saturday. That will mean that the line will have been closed less than a week by a flood that washed away a high bridge 326 feet long and 150 feet of fill approaching it.

Since the break transfer of passengers, mail and express has been accomplished with much difficulty, the high banks of the river at the bridge adding to the slowness by which this is accomplished. This has made trains from the northwest very late.

This break at Arvada came at a time when the other line to Billings was tied up by the Big Horn river floods, and because of the closing of the line entirely to freight the loss has been very heavy.

Work on the bridge has continued day and night since the flood came.

BRYAN MAY VISIT COOLIDGE

Governor Feels the President's Invitation to Luncheon at White House Is a Command.

Governor Bryan is torn between two conflicting emotions. He had just notified Secretary Riley of the governors' annual conference that he could not possibly find time to attend the meeting to be held at West Baden, Ind., October 17 to 19. He considered that matter settled, but now comes the publication of a dispatch from Washington stating that President Coolidge had invited all the governors for a conference of law enforcement at the white house Saturday, October 20. The invitations have not been received, but it is said they call for a luncheon at the white house at 2 p. m., followed by discussion of general law enforcement, with particular attention to prohibition, immigration and narcotic laws. Heads of government departments concerned will attend.

Governor Bryan said he may now reconsider his decision not to attend the conference in Indiana as he feels that an invitation from the president is something in the nature of a command. He has funds appropriated by the legislature to pay his traveling expenses. In addition the legislature appropriated $500 for "membership" and expenses incurred in the annual conferences of governors. This expense includes a fat salary for a secretary of the conference. President Harding set a precedent by inviting all governors at the annual conference to visit him at the white house to confer in regard to law enforcement.

LEGAL ROW OVER A DEPUTY

Richardson County Board Appeals From Finding That Register Should Have One.

The county board of Richardson does not desire to spend any money for a deputy of Register of Deeds Rose, and has asked the supreme court to relieve it of that responsibility. W. A. Rose was elected last year and took office the first of the year. He asked for authority to appoint a deputy in the person of Daisy Barton, but the board refused. It is said there was only enough business there three months of the year to keep an extra person employed, and devised a plan by which this clerical help could be divided between that office and that of County Judge.

This was not satisfactory to Mr. Rose, and he kept Miss Barton at work in his office. Then they brought a suit to mandamus the board. He said the register had always had a deputy to serve while he was absent, help on the work and to assist in comparing documents. The board denied this was the case. But in the end Judge Raper said he had the right to name a deputy and the board to fix the salary and require that she give assistance in other county offices, under a law passed at the last session.

JUDGE MUNGER AT KIWANIS

Will Speak on Observations of Recent Tour in the Orient.

"Glimpses of the Orient as They Occurred to a Traveler," is the subject on which Judge Munger will address the Kiwanis club Friday at its weekly luncheon at the chamber of commerce. The secretary points out that "the judge's reputation is such that his remarks are often listened to with deep interest, not to say appreciation."

August Molzer will play a group of violin numbers. New members will be introduced at this meeting and the distinguished service medal committee will invite suggestions as to the 1923 award.

RECOVERING BOY'S BODY FROM SEWER

Your Problems
BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: Well, I am really glad to know in this day and age when so many not only "marry in haste" but repent in a hurry, that there is one young woman who stops to think of living together the rest of their days and is careful.

But if the young man is not antagonistic to her reading poets and discussing philosophy and attends and has respect for the same church there is little to fear. We have our own thoughts and tastes individually even if we are married. But the home and its necessities is an all absorbing thing for both.

Some writer has said it is really better that the wife should at the start be more intellectual and better educated—for it takes some effort and planning on her part to keep advancing intellectually when so many hours are spent alone in the home or with servants or with small children. But most men needs must keep on learning and expanding—in sheer self defense for "he needs it in his business."

The church, community betterment and clubs and now political issues are things that develop women socially and intellectually—and business and national issues the man, and both husband and wife should keep growing.

I've seen some pretty happy marriages of an untutored tho intelligent man and a cultured and educated woman. Remember a former president of U. S. was said to have been taught to read by his wife. Also read The Virginian.

As for all these unhappy wives—Peony, Undecided, Tired, Lavender and the rest: you are not living a life in sticking to home and husband even tho there is no love and romance. You are living true to a principle and faithful to an ideal and not only will you have respect of folks by so doing but we read that in heaven there is a special reward for those who are faithful to duty until death.

Lavender, don't you love your husband as a friend? Friendship is great in itself. Let me whisper to Miner's Wife. All men like news and gossip. My husband was always willing for me to take an afternoon off and go a-visiting even tho at times he had to keep the children—because he said I came home so cheerful but it was really because I came home full of news that he liked to hear.

You are young and lonesome in your cabin and come home dreading it. Now a man's gossip is not a woman's, but you come home cheerful and always with some bit of news your husband likes and you talk about it for six months cheerfully and perhaps he will be willing for you to go oftener.

Minnehaha, I like your outspokenness, saying exactly what you think even tho you are wrong. It is no small task to bring into the world five children and rear them right even with every advantage of health and wealth. No wonder some are staggered at the job they face in youth and inexperience and poverty—when you don't even know where money for food and clothing is forthcoming. But they are precious children anyway and it is a worth while job.

But Minnehaha, you say you are doing "your best for them." Why, no one could do more than that. What a great thing is mother love that makes you do your best for them even tho the work is drudgery.

I wish I might take care of your children and your mending basket so you could take a day off for recreation and get a better perspective.—Seventy-Five.

A That is a generous thought Mrs. Seventy Five. I'm sure Mrs. Minnehaha appreciates it. I'm sorry you cannot meet her, for your long years of service to your family, your wisdom as expressed in your philosophy, would be splendid for her.

We are always glad to hear from you.

Dear Mary Gordon: There have been so many young men and women bemoaning the fact that they are not popular, that I cannot let them be alone, but I sympathize with them all.

For I thought there never was such an unpopular girl as myself but look me back I know I was not so unpopular tho folks did not demonstrate their regard by invitations to picnics and parties as I wished and still wish they had.

I was glad Mary Gordon gave that advice about personal cleanliness tho I don't believe any who have thought over the subject enough to ask advice would be remiss in these ordinary things. But most of us do have some little disagreeable personality or habit we ought to overcome—even popular people have them. The fact is that some folks are popular and some are not—some are popular at sweet sixteen and some at mature thirty; some are popular for a season, and some always.

Why, to have friends you must be friendly, that is one thing; but not too effusively friendly. Perhaps that is the matter with Quad. A girl don't want a man to act as if he owned her. I know a good man who did everything for any girl he went with, sincerely wishing to please, but girl after girl became disgusted with monotony of attentions. Girls like surprises.

And men too. I remember a good looking, highly educated young woman with qualities who would have made a devoted wife, but the man she regarded with such marked open affection quit going with her, evidently tired of her sickish sweet and married a girl so dignified as to be considered by many cold and haughty.

Above all to be popular one should be appreciateive. It ought not be hard for a girl with few dates to be happy and appreciative, and to say so, but that is where so many fumble—they don't know how to express appreciation.

For fear of being offensive they are dumb. For those who are not good talkers, don't worry. This world is full of those who have the gift of gab. But good listeners are rare indeed. Just get the other fellow started and all you need to do is to listen and he will think you a charming conversationalist when it is his own conversation and your attention he enjoys.—Experience.

A. I agree with you about popularity. Some are born with it and some acquire it. Some never have it.

Sometimes I think there is a great dearth of good listeners; too many who love to talk.

Dear Mary Gordon: We are four girls who have come to you for your advice because we and our mothers do not agree.

Is it correct for a girl to accept any kind of a present from her boy friend, as when he gives her a birthday present?

Our mothers say it is not, but we can see no harm in it if we accept a present from our boy friends.

If you are attached to a boy whom you think quite well of, and your mother says you are too young, how can you drop him? If girls do not date, people think something is "peculiar" about the girl or boys would like her, and take her places. Am I not right?—Freckles, Smiles, Grins and Happy.

A There is nothing unconventional in accepting some little gift like flowers or a book from a young man friend. Never accept jewelry, however, unless you are engaged. But if your mother does not approve, it would be better to return the gift to the young man with a nice little note, telling him that mother would rather you didn't keep it.

All you can do is to tell him your mother thinks you are too young. Surely he needs nothing more than that.

What other people think does not matter—you yourself now you are a normal, attractive young person.

Brush Your Hair.

Brushing the hair seems to have fallen into disuse—but the longest hair is brushed hair. The old Quakers taught their children to brush the hair one hundred times every night.

Hair needs to be stretched and exercised as much as muscles, and if brushed regularly it is made cleaner and does not need washing so often. The oil ducts, too, act more naturally.

Strangely enough, the same treatment will restore impaired functions whether the trouble is excessive oiliness or excessive dryness.

BRYAN BOOM FOR PRESIDENT

Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen Disclaim Knowledge of Plan to Declare for Governor.

Members of the Lincoln lodge, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, disclaim any knowledge of a report that the lodge is planning to endorse Governor Bryan for president of the United States. This organization recently denounced Henry Ford as an enemy of labor unions and adopted a resolution opposing Ford for president. The lodge will hold its regular meeting Thursday evening.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advertisement.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally, and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply lampoon a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—Advertisement.

Why Fear
Child-birth

EXPECTANT mothers do not undergo useless suffering any longer, and baby's birth can be made gloriously easier.

CHALLENGES AWARD TO LINCOLN ARTIST

Omaha Man Threatens to See Lawyer Because His Painting Did Not Receive Prize From Society of Fine Arts.

An Omaha artist is threatening to see a lawyer about the award of the $100 prize at the Omaha Society of Fine Arts to a Lincoln woman, according to an article in an Omaha paper. Two prizes of $50 each also came to Lincoln artists. A portion of the article follows:

Augustus W. Dunbier, Omaha artist who last year won the $100 prize at the exhibit of the Omaha Society of Fine Arts, declared that he would not permit to go unchallanged the awards for this year's exhibits, in which the $100 prize was given to Mrs. Alice E. Edmiston of Lincoln.

Dunbier's resentment is shared by Dr. Robert F Gilder, also a prize winner last year, who was given no award this year. Miss Augusta Knight of the University of Omaha and Miss Alice Cleaver of Falls City, other 1922 prize winners who exhibited this year did not win this year. Prizes for 1923 went to Mrs. Edmiston, Miss Gertrude Young, Miss Hedvig Norskov, Miss Dodds and Robert J. Dinning, jr.

"I believe the society is subject to action in not announcing in their prospectus that last years prize winners would not be considered in this year's award. I am going to consult a lawyer," said Mr. Dunbier. "The Society is giving me a black eye, and I will not stand for it."

The judges who awarded the prizes Tuesday were George W. Eggers, director of the Denver Art association, Birger Sandzen, Lindsborg, Kas., and James Topping of Chicago.

"If these judges say that this year's prize winer is better than my paintings, I will give them a chance to prove it by asking them to send it to the Pennsylvania academy," said Mr. Dunbier. "When my painting, 'Emily' was accepted by the Pennsylvania last winter, it was the second time in the history of Nebraska that a man from this state had gotten in. I know that at least two of the judges have never succeeded in getting a picture in the Pennsylvania academy, and I will bet my last cent that none of these prize winners could get in."

HUNT THREE RUNAWAY BOYS

Sterling Lads Left Home With Car Tuesday Night. Believed Headed for California.

Three Sterling boys who left home Tuesday night in a car belonging to the father of one, are being sought by relatives in this vicinity, and a reward of $50 has been offered for information leading to their discovery. The boys are Henry Baker, eighteen, William Wehmer, seventeen, and Edmond Haynes, fifteen, all going to school. Young Haynes is a brother of E. S. Haynes of Lincoln, and his father, S. R. Haynes, offers the reward.

After the lads were missed, friends remembered hearing them talk about joining the navy, and the recruiting offices at Omaha and Lincoln were at once notified. The boys had not appeared at either place, E. S. Haynes said Thursday, and he believes they may have started for California. Officers have been notified.

Lincoln Resident Gains Thirty Pounds

"I have gained thirty pounds and feel twenty years younger," is the emphatic statement made recently by Mrs. Agnes Phillips, 1119 K St., Lincoln, Neb., in telling of the benefits she has derived from the Tanlac treatment.

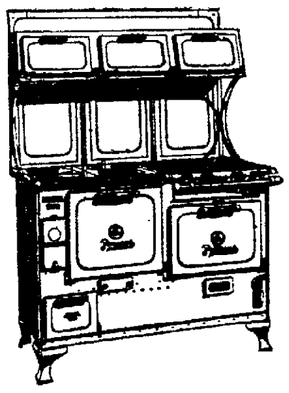

For over a year my appetite was very poor, and the little food I forced myself to eat would distress me terribly. Heartburn and smothering spells troubled me after meals, and morning headaches and dizziness were hard to endure. I was so nervous the least thing would upset me, and often I lay awake half the night. I felt completely run down, and was so weak I could hardly do my housework.

"Well, the Tanlac treatment improved my appetite and digestion so I now eat with keen relish, and now my nerves are normal again, my head stays clear, my pains have gone, I sleep splendidly, and housework seems easier than ever before. In fact, Tanlac has completely restored my health."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Grain prices opened unchanged to fractionally lower on the Chicago board of trade today.

Profit-taking weakened wheat values at the outset, as did the failure of Liverpool to respond to yesterday's upturn. Another depressing factor was the general belief that much of the recent advance was due to short covering which left the market technically weaker. Dispatches from Washington stated that the administration would not call an extra session of congress to consider relief for the stricken farmer; that the administration was opposed to any method of price-fixing that was in sympathy with a movement for better prices to be paid wheat producers. Receipts were light at 55 cars.

More liberal offerings and some profit-taking featured the downturn in corn prices. Weather and crop news were favorable. Receipts were 115 cars.

Oats were unchanged on a featureless market. Receipts, 129 cars.

Lower cables and a weak grain market brought a slump in provisions.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett Frazier & Co.: A reaction would be natural and beneficial.

E. Lowitz & Co.: Moderate recessions are anticipated at intervals due to technical conditions.

Hulburd, Warren & Chandler: Barring any action by the government prices already seem too high.

Stein Alstrin: The futures market appears daily to be gathering strength, but some irregularity may develop until recent selling has been digested.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: The first effect of any government action would be to encourage a holding policy.

Clement Curtis & Co.: We anticipate higher prices.

Thomson McKinnon: It may be well to temper bullish ideas in wheat with supplies arrayed against the indifferent foreign demand. A further advance seems likely in corn.

Riordan & Martin: We look for higher markets and would buy on profit taking declines.

Logan & Bryan: We look for higher markets.

Simpson: There has been a lot of realizing in wheat on the advance but there has also been quite an expansion in the fresh buying. Think those who have sold out will replace on any fair setback and this support for the time being will prevent any material setback. Shorts and fresh buyers absorbed the heavy realizing sales by the leading long interest in the corn market. Looks as if the market would have fairly wide swings in either direction until the movement of the new crop.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—There is a belief among certain leading grain interests that not all of the administration's plans to help the wheat farmers have been made known. Reports yesterday were to the effect that something absolutely new and as yet unmentioned will be announced. Weight was given this conclusion because of the character of the buying in the pit here the last few days and the absence from the city yesterday of one local cash grain handler who is expected to be relied upon by the government to direct operations here if not actually appointed to carry the mout.

With premiums of 24 to 25 cents over December failing to bring out any important amounts of corn from the interior and with shippers short on contracts for all this month, and part of November there appears to be little chance for short sellers in the December delivery. A large long interest exists however and a certain amount of realizing is to be expected on any further upturn.

While oats are cheap they are meeting with extensive selling on all hard spots. Cheapness is not an asset unless there is a demand and oats at present lack needed speculative support.—Lamson.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—A number of wheat traders believe a reaction is due as part of the advance has been due to covering by previous sellers. Much of the buying in wheat of late has been on the theory that the government will do something in the way of financing to help the farmer get better prices.

One trader advances the theory that "co-operatives" bought many millions of bushels of September wheat at $1 and under and took delivery on a liberal quantity of it last month, which they are holding without hedges.

An immense evening up was on in corn yesterday some of the bulls sleling out on the belief that hte advance had been too rapid and that it was a good idea to take profits while shorts were covering.

Ask Bill Repealed.

DES MOINES, Oct. 4.—Repeal of the Capper-Tincher bill was asked of congress in a resolution passed yesterday at the closing session of the grain dealers convention. The resolution contended that the bill resulted in depressed business conditions, suffering and declining agricultural values. Another resolution asked congress to remove the revenue tax on grain transactions as it was a war measure and the tax has been removed from most other commodities.—Lamson.

Stock Market Opinions.

Housman & Co.: The market has not yet broadened out to the extent which seems probable.

Clark Childs & Co.: The market appears to have sufficient impetus to carry its advance further.

Sterling 4.54 3-4; Francs .0583; Lire .0443; aMrks 500,000,000 for one dollar.

Broadan Wall: The bulk of the rise yesterday in stocks was attributed to short covering. While the buying was beavy it was not suvicient to eliminate but a small part of short interest. This was shown by a demand for shares in the loan crowd. Most of the trade news was unfavorable especially regarding the steel and copper industry. The Oils however, appear to have been severely liquidated.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Bears were in rather a benumbed state of mind as the result of punishment which had been meted out to them in the previous session and they showed a disposition in the early dealings today to retire from the market to see just how far the rally would go.

This tendency was stimulated by the optimistic survey of the federal reserve board which reported that the banks in the agricultural districts were in a strong lending position, saying the advance in crop prices more than offset the decrease in output.

Steel, Dupont, American Woolen, American Can and other industrial leaders scored further gains on the initial transactions, while the rails were generally higher.

The Jarr Family.

(Copyright, 1923.)

"Why, how do you do, Mr. Jarr!" cried Mrs. Rangle, as Mr. Jarr was briskly passing her on his way downtown. "Isn't it lucky I should see you going by? I was just going out to the drug store to telephone to Mr. Rangle."

"Can I be of any service to you?" asked Mr. Jarr solicitously.

"Why yes!" said Mrs. Rangle. "If you wouldn't mind telephoning a message to Mr. Rangle at his office for me. He's gone down early this morning. I want to send him word about something."

"I'll be glad to. What is it? I'll stop in the drug store and telephone for you," offered Mr. Jarr.

"Oh, you needn't mind doing that!" said Mrs. Rangle. "It will do if you call him up when you get down to your office. Tell him to be sure and let me know if he can meet me at Soandso's department store at 5 o'clock. It's very important."

"Why, certainly, I won't forget that," replied Mr. Jarr. "Suppose he can't meet you? How will he let you know?"

"I'll tell you what to do, Mr. Jarr, if you will," said Mrs. Rangle. "You telephone to your apartment at 9 o'clock, when I'll be over to see Mrs. Jarr. But you men are so forgetful," she added. And she turned back to her household cares.

Mr. Jarr hastened downtown. As he was getting off the subway train despite the warning cry of the guard, "Watch your step!" a buxom lady slipped down between the car and the platform. Mr. Jarr grasped her and held her up before she could be hurt.

"Take your hands off me!" cried the buxom woman, shrewishly. "This subway is full of a lot of mashers waiting to get a chance to make themselves fresh! I am all right!"

Mr. Jarr rushed to the office feeling like thirty cents. He called several times before lunch.

"Aw, phone your wife to tell my wife I'll be there!" growled Mr. Rangle. "But I don't thank you for carrying the message. Now I'll have to show up and go shopping with her. Why didn't you let her call me herself? I've told the office boy to take the message and then I'd say when I get home that I didn't get it. But when the boy said it was you I came to the phone."

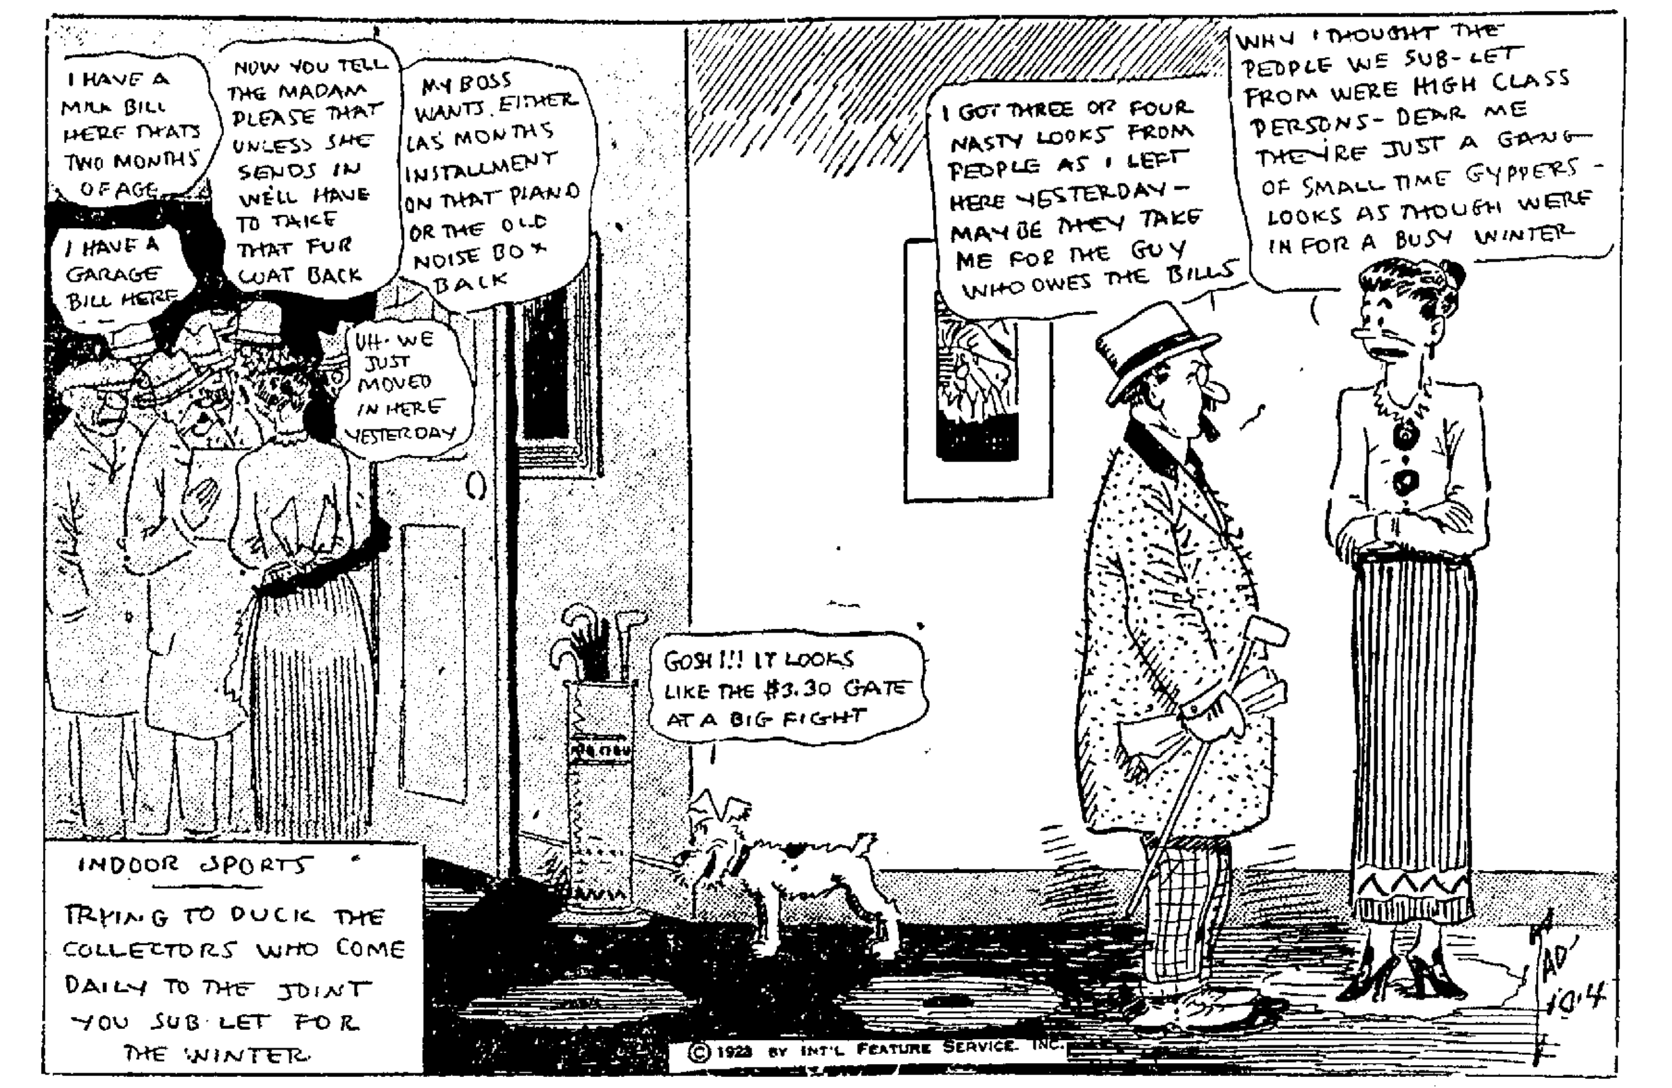

Mr. Jarr got in connection with Mrs. Rangle at his own apartment at the time appointed and told her that Mr. Rangle would meet her.

"Oh dear me! I wish you'd forgotten it!" peevishly answered Mrs. Rangle over the phone. "I'm not going to shop this afternoon. Mrs. Jarr and I are going downtown together to-morrow all day! Oh, why did you call him up, Mr. Jarr?"

On his way home Mr. Jarr encountered a blind colored man singing, "Yes. We Have No Bananas."

"You're a lucky guy. I've had a lemon handed to me," said Mr. Jarr.

UNCOMMON SENSE.

By John Blake.

Do Your Dreaming in Bed.

A good deal of nonsense has been written about dreamers.

Men who have looked into the future and made great plans for it have not been dreamers.

Only the wideawake have vision.

Columbus is sometimes spoken of as a man "who dreamed of a new world.".

As a matter of fact the idea of a new world never entered his head.

He merely planned to go to a distant part of the old world in a new way.

And he didn't make his plans unconsciously.

All his faculties were at work at the same time when he was figuring out that by going west instead of south and north he could beat other voyagers to the land of gold by about two months and a half.

It was no dream that Sir Isaac Newton indulged in when the accidental fall of an apple led him to wondering what made it fall.

Dreamers would never have wondered about that.

They took things for granted.

Newton did far more than to discover the attraction of gravitation.

He studied the stars and their relations to the earth.

His mind was always operating full steam ahead.

Nor were there any dreams befogging the mind of William Shakespeare when by hard work—a good part of it tedious and mechanical—he put down on paper all of his intelligence that was transferable in that way and taught other people to act and speak it.

Shakespeare might have dreamed of playwriting all his life and never written a single play.

You can hardly stroll around the block without finding some one who has great dreams about what he means to do.

But he never does them.

He is always too busy dreaming about them.

It is pleasant to dream. There are limits to one's capabilities in dreams.

There is never any necessity of developing any particular set of faculties in order to get things done.

We know of a man who regularly plays a round of golf in two or three under par while he is trying to make up his mind to get out of bed in the morning.

But it takes him 125 to play the same round when he gets out on the links.

All people like to dream. And dreams do no harm.

But the best place to indulge in them is in bed.

After one gets up he does more for himself if he stays wide awake.

The Platypus.

In "Birdbeast" in St. Nicholas, Samuel Scoville, jr., gives a complete and interesting description of the platypus, one of the strangest creatures on earth:

That night there suddenly appeared on the bank of a stream, which showed like a silver ribbon in the star-shine, one of the strangest of all the strange creatures of Tasmania. Two feet in length, she seemed neither bird nor beast nor reptile, but a mixture of all three. As she shot out of the water, her body twisted like a snake, since her ribs were attached to her spine with the movable hinges of a serpent. Instead of the muzzle of a mammal, she had a broad black bill like that of a shoveler-duck. Yet her thick black fur and short tail were unmistakabbly those of an animal. Once on the bank she sat up humpily and slowly ground between the grooved ridges of bone, which took the place of teeth in her strange bill, the shrimps and other little crustacea which she had caught at the bottom of the stream and pouched in the pockets which she wore in her cheeks. As she ate, she showed her kinship to the fowls by swallowing a little gravel to aid digestion. Her meal finished, the platypus, as scientists have christened this birdbeast, combed her thick fur with the curved claws of her webbed hind feet like a beaver, preened herself with her broad bill as a duck would have done, and finally plunged into the stream, where she swam swift as a fish, with only the tip of her beak showing above the water.

Rounding a bend in the river, she suddenly shot into a hole in the bank, some three feet under water, the basement entrance to her home, whose front-door was another hole hidden in the long tangled grass at the top of the bank. The tunnels from both of these entrances met in a main underground passage some thirty feet in length, along which the platypus hurried until she reached a chamber lined with dry leaves. There on a mass of withered bracken lay a single white egg, some three quarters of an inch long, with a tough membraneous shell like that of a turtle. With a single coiling twist of her lithe body, the birdbeast wound herself around it and slept thru the long heat of the drawning day.

She was still sleeping in the late afternoon when a sudden tiny movement against the slow throbbing of her single-valved, reptilian heart made her uncoil with the suddenness of a steel spring. There, beneath her soft fur, moved a bare, blind atom of life. Naked, with a broad gaping bill, it looked, as it struggled out of the prisoning shell, like some pitiful, ugly fledging. Yet its first movement in the new world in which it found itself was mammalian for, in spite of its bill it nuzzled hungrily against its mother like any other baby of the fur-bearers.

At the end of a fortnight the bird-reptile-mammal infant was covered with a silver fur soft as silk, had opened a pair of keen golden eyes, and cut a full set of roundtopped teeth, which is about all that can be reasonablly expected from any two-weeks-old baby. Then, a few days later, the little duckbill had his first swimming lesson.

One misty afternoon, his mother hoisted him high on her back and started downstream with him. Little by little she sank from under him until, as he found himself floating on the surface of the water, he paddled desperately with his fore paws, webbed clear beyond the claws, and, to his surprise, discovered that he could swim. For long trips, however, he still preferred to ride on his mother's back, and the two would speed up and down the stream with their bills just showing above water, like tiny periscopes. Then came a day, after this duckbill baby had learned the ways of the water, when his mother took him with her far down-stream. There, in a reedy shallow of the river, she groped in the mud at the bottom like a duck, and when the pockets in her cheeks were filled, came back to the surface to feed.

Cautioning Him.

Kansas City Star: "I'm already to start out to capture them there moonshine distillers, over in Devil's holler," boasted constable Ketchum of Tumlinville. "Got the warrant right yur, and my gun, and—"

"Don't you reckon you'd better leave your gun at home?" mildly returned Tobe Sagg of Sandy Mush. "Them gents hain't got no manners. They'll prob'ly make you eat the warrant and you don't want to hafto eat the gun too."

A Cedar County Farm Mortgage

We offer, if unsold when your order reaches us, 23 bonds of $500 each, secured by first mortgage on 160 acres near Laurel, Cedar County, due April 14, 1928, and bearing semi-annual interest at 5½ per cent.

Our examiner, who is very conservative in his valuations, values the land at $23,400 and the buildings at $1,500. He states that the surface is smooth rolling upland, with a dark sandy loam soil. Fenced into 3 fields; well, windmill and gasoline engine; an acre of grove and a half acre of bearing orchard.

A quarter section adjoining this farm was sold in 1921 for $190 per acre. Surface and soil substantially the same. This mortgage was given to complete purchase price of the land. Owner is a strong middle-aged man with wife and three children and bought the land to establish a home. Was formerly a successful tenant farmer, and has now achieved the goal he had ever in sight—a farm and home he can call his own.

Buyer of these Farm First Mortgage Bonds will have no State or local taxes to pay on them.

MEN AND THINGS.

A quarter million dollars were lost in less than eight months by the operation of a state-owned flouring mill in North Dakota, as attested by an audit of the state. Coming at a time when the milling industry was never better organized, getting a larger margin than in years and making more money, this is interesting. If we lived in North Dakota we would probably be madder than a hornet about it. It is probably useless to exclaim why men working for the public interest should not be as zealous that it should make profit as they are when working for a private employer, but they will not do it. Here and there they are to be found, and public ownership is a success, but they are not very numerous on the whole.

The traditional flea on a hot griddle has nothing on Governor Walton of Oklahoma, who is our most conspicuous example of a public officer who does his thinking long after he has acted. To himself he is the biggest hero that ever happened. He has visualized himself as a man against whom the invisible empire has sworn an oath of death and who is doing the St. George act to save the state of Oklahoma from desecration and disgrace. At the same time he is canny enough to call in the reporters and camera men before he puts on his armor and gets his lance where it doesn't rub his right leg. His one glimmer of sense in two weeks was when he listened to those who advised him that after the supreme court had declared an election call valid he had no right to prevent the people from voting thereat.

A man can insure his life and ought to do it, but he cannot insure against the possible folly of those to whom he leaves the proceeds of his policies. A survey recently made by the representatives of life companies showed that about as large a percentage as ever of life insurance money is wasted. Any number of instances were uncovered where wives who had never enjoyed any particular amount of spending money used the greater part of the small amount of money that came to them in buying fine clothes and taking a trip to relatives to show them off. The executive of one of the local companies who had rejected an offer from a widow and her daughter to heavily discount the life insurance left if he would pay it in a lump sum instead of in the monthly payments provided by the deceased husband and father got the tongue-lashing of his life and was informed that he was a mighty poor business man.

Lack of experience in handling money is one of the reasons why such follies are committed. Husbands who have no good reason for not teaching their wives by allowing them to handle money freely are to blame if the possession of one or two thousand of life insurance money upsets them mentally when it is handed over to them. It has been a common experience with social welfare society workers to have women who have been given an order on a grocery, so as to provide her and her children with food, to buy the most expensive stuff. One woman who had thus secured the possession of a can of pate de foie gras or something like it explained that she had read a lot about that stuff and had wondered what it tasted like, and this seemed to be about the only way she would ever get the chance to satisfy her curiosity.

We have come to believe, after years of having had it hammered into us, that the most valuable thing a man may possess is horse sense. But does the horse justify this common belief that the sense he possesses is the most desirable to possess? If this belief has a sound basis, why is it that mules bring a lot more in the market than do horses, something like 50 to 70 per cent more? If a mule were not so ornery-looking, if he did not look so much like a mule, his good qualities would call for even higher quotations compared to a horse. Why do we not exalt mule sense instead of horse sense when the mule is so much more sensible than the horse?

The dispatches say that Germany is likely to have a bourgeoise government shortly. By that is meant a government by the middle classes, those who differ from the proletariat only in that they have made and saved a stake. They still work as hard as the industrialists. Russia has a government of the proletariat in name. It started out that way, but it was soon evident that only a few of the proletariat had experience enough or knowledge enough to govern others, and it degenerated into an autocracy. Most European governments have been dominated by the upper classes, those who reaped without sowing. What more sensible and just government could be secured if not from the middle classes who have a stake to defend and still have not been so long in that class that they have lost touch and sympathy with those lower in the scale?

ABE MARTIN

We guess th' only time some folks ever read is when they have their eyes tested. Between th' exodus from th' city t' th' country club, an' th' migration from th' farm t' th' city, it looks like we wuz up again it.

No Promises to Be Broken.

Florida Times-Union: "Up to date," says a Washington dispatch, "the thirtieth president of the United States has not made a single promise to anybody about anything." Thus is "Silent Cal" living up to his reputation of thinking much but saying very little. It isn't pleasing the job hunters, but what of that, so long as the people who are not hunting political jobs are satisfied?
